

BRITISH BATTLESHIP SUNK WITH 500 MEN IN DARDANELLES

GOLIATH DESTROYED BY TORPEDO; 180 OF HER MEN ARE SAVED

Sister Ship of Ocean Is Fourth Allied Warship Sent to Bottom in Straits—British Submarine Penetrates Sea of Marmora and Sinks Two Gunboats and Transport.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 13.—The British battleship Goliath was torpedoed by a Turkish destroyer in the Dardanelles last night and sunk with a loss of life of more than 500. The sinking of the warship—the fourth big vessel to be lost by the allies since they began their operations in the Dardanelles—was announced in the House of Commons today by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, who also said the British submarine E14 had penetrated the Dardanelles to the Sea of Marmora and sunk two Turkish gunboats and a large Turkish transport.

Churchill's statement to the House was as follows:
"The Goliath was torpedoed last night in a torpedo attack by destroyers while protecting the French flank just inside the straits.
"Twenty officers and 160 men were saved, which I feel means that over 500 were lost."

"The Admiral commanding at the Dardanelles also telegraphs that the submarine E14, which with so much daring penetrated to the Sea of Marmora, has reported that she sank two Turkish gunboats and a large Turkish transport."

The Goliath was a sister ship of the Ocean, which was destroyed in the Dardanelles with the Irresistible and the French battleship Bouvet March 18, and was of 12,800 tons displacement. It was completed in 1900 and the normal complement was 730 men. The ship's principal armament consisted of four 12-inch guns, and 12 6-inch guns. Other vessels of the same class are the Canopus, Glory, Albion and Vanguard.

April 5 a wireless dispatch from Berlin said information had been received there that the British battleship Lord Nelson had been stranded inside the straits and had been destroyed by the fire of Turkish guns. This report was not confirmed by the British Admiralty.

French Take Carency With Bayonet; Germans Nearly Driven From Neuville

PARIS, May 13.—The War Office this afternoon issued the following statement on the progress of hostilities:
"We won brilliant successes Wednesday evening and Wednesday night to the north of Arras.
"At Notre Dame de Lorette we are masters of the fort, as well as of the chapel.
"In the vast quadrilateral of trenches and earthworks, which is to the south of the chapel of Notre Dame de Lorette, we have been subjected to a very violent counter-attack. A ferocious combat, which lasted all night long, developed in this quadrilateral. In the morning we were complete masters of the situation, having inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy.
"During Wednesday night we also took by assault all the village of Carency, as well as the forts to the north of it. May 12, the German garrison stationed in this village and in this forest wood was composed of one battalion of the 10th Regiment of Infantry; one battalion of the 126th Regiment of Infantry; one battalion of Bavarian Chasseurs and six companies of pioneers, 300 men in all. These forces had made of Carency and of Hill No. 125 in the forest a position of great strength. In spite of the fact that their numbers had been very much reduced by their losses in killed, wounded and prisoners on previous days, these forces during the entire night put up a desperate resistance to our attack delivered against a maze of trenches, block-houses and narrow passages. We broke down this resistance of the enemy and at break of day we were in complete mastery of the situation. Our troops killed hundreds of Germans at the point of the bayonet. We made 1000 prisoners, of whom about 30 are officers. Included in these latter is a Colonel and the commandant of the battalion of Chasseurs.
"At the southern exit of Souchaux our positions were subjected yesterday to violent attack on the part of the enemy. Nevertheless, we retained them."

"At Neuville our attacks on the village itself and to the south of the village made perceptible progress. To the north of Neuville we took possession of trenches several hundred yards long and we occupied the road called the Highway des Carrières, which runs from Neuville to Oiselay. In the village itself we occupied yesterday morning only the southern portion, the enemy still holding the center and the northern part. An attack delivered late in the afternoon resulted in our occupying the house by house all the central portion of this village. The Germans were driven back to the extreme northern part, where we are outflanking them. Our troops in this fighting gave admirable evidence of courage and tenacity.

"In the forest of Le Pretre we occupied yesterday a new line of German trenches."
GERMAN AFRICAN CAPITAL CAPTURED
Gen. Botha's Forces Take Windhoek and Proclaim Martial Law.
LONDON, May 13.—An official statement made public at Cape Town and received by the Reuter Telegram Co. says that Windhoek, capital of German Southwest Africa, was captured yesterday without resistance by the Union of South Africa forces under Gen. Botha. The population of the town consists of 3700 Europeans and 12,000 natives. Botha's troops took a considerable quantity of railway rolling stock. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the conquered territory.
Announcement was made April 20 that the forces of the Union of South Africa had occupied Keetmanskop, the most important town in German Southwest Africa, next to the capital, thus obtaining command of the railroad leading to Windhoek. A statement was issued May 6 telling of the occupation by Gen. Botha of Karibib after a forced march of 35 miles over a waterless waste.

Turkish Cruiser Damaged by Russian Black Sea Fleet.
LONDON, May 13.—Dispatches from Odessa assert that the Turkish cruiser Sultan Selim (formerly the Goeben) was badly damaged Monday in an engagement with the Russian Black Sea fleet, which was bombarding the forts of the Bosphorus. The Turkish official version of the encounter, received by wireless, follows:
"A Russian fleet including five battleships, two cruisers, 12 torpedo boats and some transports steamed to a point near the entrance to the Bosphorus with a view of renewing its demonstration. The Selim opened a heavy fire and the Russians beat a hasty retreat to Sebastopol. The leading battleship was badly damaged. The Russian fleet was able to escape from the Selim only by entering a fortified harbor."

The Milan Secolo states the Russians are continuing the disembarking of troops at Inladi, a small port on the Black Sea, 75 miles northeast of Sebastopol.

PICKPOCKET'S BOND SET ASIDE WHILE GOVERNOR IS AWAY

Lieutenant-Governor Painter Reverses Ruling by Gov. Major That $1500 Must Be Paid.

ACTS OVER A PROTEST

Circuit Attorney Objected to Relieving Sam Weisman of Paying After Man's Flight.

Lieut.-Gov. Painter, acting Governor while Gov. Major is at the Panama Exposition, in Jefferson City yesterday set aside for Sam Weisman, a professional bondman, the forfeiture of a $1500 bond of Harry Lackner, a notorious pickpocket. Gov. Major, after an investigation three weeks ago, ruled that Weisman must pay the bond. Painter acted over the protest of Circuit Attorney Harvey. The Lieutenant-Governor said this morning that he did not know Gov. Major had refused to set aside the forfeiture. Assistant Circuit Attorney Baer, who appeared before the Lieutenant-Governor, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that they discussed the Governor's refusal to set aside the forfeiture.

Wrote to Governor's Office.
Circuit Attorney Harvey personally appeared before the Governor three weeks ago. After the Governor refused to grant Weisman's request, it was rumored about the Municipal Courts building that as soon as Gov. Major left the State the application would be renewed before Lieutenant-Governor Painter.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Baer wrote to the Governor's office asking that if the matter again should be presented that he be notified. He received his notice and appeared before Lieutenant-Governor Painter last Saturday. He said this morning that he told the Lieutenant-Governor that pickpockets frequently obtained professional bondmen to sign their bonds, that they then failed to appear for trial and that the professional bondmen had been very successful in having forfeitures set aside.

Now in a Penitentiary.
He said the Lieutenant-Governor told him that Senator Michael Kinney had told him that Danny Naughton, who formerly was Clerk of the House of Delegates and who was acquitted of a charge of perjury in connection with a garage boodle scandal in the House of Delegates, would have to pay the bond, as he had induced Weisman to sign it. Senator Joseph Brogan also appeared in behalf of Weisman.
Lieutenant-Governor Painter this morning said he set aside the forfeiture because it was shown to him that Naughton is in the West Virginia penitentiary and that it is a physical impossibility for Weisman to bring him to Missouri.
Lackner was caught Oct. 30, 1913, on an Olive street car at Grand avenue, when picking the pocket of Charles W. LaGrave of 302 Evans avenue. His bond of $1500 was declared forfeited in the Circuit Court, when he failed to appear for trial.
Assistant Circuit Attorney Baer said the fact that defendant was a prisoner of another state did not relieve his bondsmen from paying the amount of a bond which had been declared forfeited in this State.

ENGLAND WILL REPATRIATE ITS MALE ENEMIES

Witness for Him Says Roosevelt Last Year Said Republicans Needed Him Again.

LONDON, May 13.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today that "all male enemies over military age will be repatriated."
He also said that women and children in suitable cases will be repatriated, although some might remain. The Government proposes to segregate "all adult male enemies for their own safety and for the safety of the country," Premier Asquith told the House of Commons.
The Premier's announcement is the result of attacks on Germans and their property in England since the sinking of the Lusitania.

40,000 Unnaturalized Allens.
In announcing the alien policy of the Government, the Premier said:
"At this moment some 40,000 unnaturalized aliens, of whom 24,000 are men, are at large in this country. The Government propose that all adult males of this class should, for their own safety and that of the country, be segregated and interned. If over the military age they should be repatriated."

10,000 Allens Already Interned.
Premier Asquith mentioned incidentally that 10,000 non-naturalized alien enemies already had been interned in Great Britain. Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the opposition, said he welcomed the Premier's statement for the reason that the country was so aroused it was likely to get out of hand.

CEMETERY'S DYNAMITE STOLEN

When employees at the Pine Lawn Cemetery reported for work this morning at the grounds on the Lemay Ferry road, south of the city limits, they found that during the night someone had broken into the tool shed and stolen a bucket containing 100 pounds of dynamite.

A baker reported to Sheriff Bode that early this morning he met several men in Horn's Grove, two miles southeast of the cemetery, and that they dropped a bucket and ran when he approached. He said the bucket contained part of the missing dynamite. It will be returned to the cemetery.

EMBASSY OFFICIAL SAID TO HAVE DECLARED GERMANY WON'T GRANT DEMANDS

New York World Correspondent Declares Attache Outlined Berlin's Position—Germany Not Worried by Prospects.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The New York World's special news report from Washington this morning says: "Germany will refuse to discontinue her present methods of submarine warfare."

"The usual formalities of note exchanging and representations must be followed, but the ultimate refusal of Germany to meet the American demands already is determined.
"Germany will continue to destroy belligerent vessels without warning. If Americans persist in traveling under the British, French or Russian flags they may be killed."

"An official of the German embassy said that this is the German position, and that it will not be modified or abandoned. He added that the German Foreign Office will politely inform the State Department that Germany regrets that Americans have been killed, but it cannot accept the terms of the Washington Government."

Not Worried by Prospects.
"The German Government realizes, it was learned, that its reply will probably mean severance of diplomatic relations, and that any untoward occurrence will then bring a condition of war. Germany is not worried by either prospect."

"For the present, the German Government believes, the hostility of the United States would have no more direct bearing on the European situation than the hostility of Japan now has. But it would enable Germany to act without restraint in attacking American shipping with submarines. In this way, Germany would hope to stop, or greatly lessen, the supply of munitions of war from the United States to the allies."

"The maritime war zone would then be broadened indefinitely, and American ships would be torpedoed in any European waters. Germany's flotilla of 200 submarines would be depended on for this purpose.
"Germany does not believe that the

GERMAN-AMERICANS ASSERT THEY WILL UPHOLD PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 13.—At the conclusion of a German-American Alliance meeting held here last night President William Otto issued the following statement:
"Although the organization did not take definite action, the sentiment was in favor of unqualified support of President Wilson in whatever action he takes. The German-Americans of this city are neutral in every respect and none of their societies will take action antagonistic to the policy of the administration."

PRESIDENT WILSON PUTS FINISHING TOUCH ON 1500-WORD PAPER

Document Will Be Made Public by Secretary Bryan Tonight and Copy Furnished to Bernstorff.

MESSAGES IN SUPPORT OF WILSON STILL POUR IN

Note Avoids Any Implication That Money Can Compensate for Lusitania Tragedy—German Embassy Declares It Has Given No Intimation as to Berlin's Attitude.

Post-Dispatch Probably Will Publish American Note in "Extra" Tonight

Announcement was made in Washington this afternoon that the American note to Germany would be given to the newspapers at about 9 o'clock tonight (8 o'clock St. Louis time). In that event the full text of the note will be given to the public in an extra edition of the Post-Dispatch at that time.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The note of the United States Government to Germany demanding guarantees that attacks on merchantmen carrying noncombatants shall end and for reparation for violations of American rights in the war zone was started on its way to Germany this afternoon. President Wilson in the morning had put the finishing touches on the document. At 1 p. m. the note had been cleared over the telegraph wires from Washington and was started on its way under the sea. It must go by way of Gibraltar and Malta and then to Rome and over land lines to Vienna and Berlin. As a courtesy a copy is to be delivered to Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador.

The note will be given out in Washington about 9 o'clock tonight (8 p. m. St. Louis time). Secretary Bryan announced today that it was between 1200 and 1500 words long.

Note to Reach Berlin Tonight.

In announcing the decision to publish the note tonight, Secretary Bryan said he expected it could be transmitted to Germany in time for delivery to the German Foreign Office during the night or early tomorrow. Actual transmission by cable through Rome and Vienna, he said, would occur late today.

Numerous communications, the Secretary said, have reached the State Department from citizens on the attitude this Government should take.
"The advice offered in these communications," said the Secretary, "differs, but all conclude with expressions of support of the President of the United States."

Officials who have seen the note made it clear that it makes no special demand for financial reparation for the loss of American lives, but asks reparation in general terms, and avoids any impression that the loss of Americans on the Lusitania could be atoned by the mere payment of cash indemnities.

Although nearly a week has passed since the sinking of the Lusitania, messages regarding the disaster continued to arrive at the White House today from all parts of the world. Virtually all of them expressed confidence in the President.

"No Intimation Given by German Embassy."
The German Embassy issued this statement:
"The German Embassy stated today that no statement or intimation had been given by the Embassy or any official of the Embassy concerning what response would be made to the American note regarding the Lusitania."

"This was brought out by the statements appearing in the press this morning to the effect that officials of the German Embassy have outlined the position of the German Government towards the American note regarding the sinking of the Lusitania and have declared that the reply would be a polite but firm refusal to cease submarine warfare against belligerent merchant ships.
"It was pointed out that the Embassy itself so far was ignorant of the terms of the American note; that it had received no instructions whatever from the German Government regarding the note, and, finally, it was declared that no official connected with the Embassy had expressed any opinion on the subject at all."
Although no mention is understood to be made as to the time when a reply is expected from the Imperial Government, the belief here is that

LONDON NEWSPAPERS SAY LUSITANIA SITUATION IS AMERICA'S AFFAIR

The German Foreign Office, realizing the state of feeling in the United States, will answer promptly. The changes are believed to have been made in the American note, the main principles as outlined to the Cabinet Tuesday being maintained. While couched in friendly terms, it is firm. It does not say what steps will be taken or what course will be pursued in the event of an unfavorable reply, but indicates that the United States will spare no pains either by diplomatic representations or otherwise, to obtain an acquiescence in its opinion. The text of the note was eagerly awaited by official Washington. The official outlines published yesterday increased the anxiety to learn the exact tenor of the document. Diplomats were especially interested in the text which they were prepared to cable to their governments as a matter of information as soon as copies could be obtained.

It is known positively that the United States Government has had no conversations either in Washington or in the foreign capitals with other governments concerning the note or the course that will be pursued should Germany refuse to comply.

Some Expect Compliance. In some quarters friendly to Germany the impression prevailed that the Berlin Government would accede to the American demand and state its opinion that the United States would endeavor to obtain the unrestricted passage of foodstuffs and conditional contraband consigned to the civilian population to Germany.

Reports that Americans had been advised to leave Germany on account of the critical state of relations with the United States were declared by officials to be wholly unfounded.

Americans in all belligerent countries were advised by the State Department at the outbreak of hostilities to leave the danger zone, and no special instructions since have been given to American envoys in Europe. Stephen Panaretto, the Bulgarian Minister, called at the State Department and expressed sympathy for the loss of Americans in the sinking of the Lusitania.

Kaiser Praised Field Marshal von Falkenhayn, Decorates Him for Victory. AMSTERDAM, May 12.—A dispatch received here from Berlin says Emperor William has sent the following communication to Field Marshal von Falkenhayn, Chief of Staff:

"With a sharp, clear glance, accurately gauging the situation, you discovered the point where the Russian army was most vulnerable, and with the plans made in consequence achieved a great success."

"The present glorious victory gives me a fresh opportunity to declare my thanks, and those of the Fatherland, for your devoted work in my service and of the Fatherland, performed in a quiet and unselfish manner."

"Among those who made it possible for the German army to show a bold front to the world and her enemies and achieve a great success over them, you stand, as chief of the general staff, in the front rank. As a token of my gratitude, I confer on you the Order of the Black Eagle."

Russian Cosacks Charge Through Barbed Wire Capture 2000 Austrians.

LONDON, May 12.—London was cheered today by the publication of a dispatch from Athens recording a decided advance in the British and French troops along the Gallipoli Peninsula. Some reports even claimed the occupation of certain heights, which would mean that the entire peninsula was under the control of the invaders.

On the Bukovina frontier Petrograd reports a brilliant success won by the Russian Cosack cavalry over the Austrian infantry. The Russian horsemen, forcing their way through a series of barbed wire entanglements, dislodged the Austrians from three lines of trenches and captured 2000 prisoners, a battery of quick-firing guns, several searchlights and a whole string of caissons.

The Russians also have recaptured Shvili in the Baltic region and are on the offensive on the Bzura in Poland.

Danish Steamer Sunk by Mine; Crew of 18 Saved.

LONDON, May 12.—A Reuter dispatch from Tynholm, 12, a lugger has arrived there with 18 men, the entire crew of the Danish steamer Lillian Drost, which was sunk by a mine Saturday in latitude 54.6, longitude 4, while on its way from Birnha to Copenhagen with a cargo of coal.

The Lillian Drost was a vessel of 1200 tons. It was reported to have sailed from Birnha on April 12.

Principal Points in U. S. Note to Germany

WASHINGTON, May 13.

THE principal points in the American note sent to Germany today demanding a guarantee against a repetition of the Lusitania tragedy are as follows:

1. The United States Government calls attention to the various incidents in the war zone proclaimed by Germany around the British Isles, the sinking of the British liner Falaba with the loss of Leon C. Thresher, an American; the attack by German airmen on the American steamer Cushing; the torpedoing without warning of the American steamer Guilford, flying the stars and stripes; and finally the torpedoing without warning of the Lusitania, with the loss of more than 1000 lives of noncombatants, among them more than 100 Americans.

2. These acts are declared to be in violation of international law. The United States points out that it never admitted Germany's right to do them and warned the Imperial Government that it would be held to a "strict accountability" for American vessels or lives. A strict accounting, therefore, is now asked from Germany.

3. Reparation will be sought, although Germany is in effect reminded that no reparation can restore the lives of those sacrificed in the sinking of the Lusitania, and other ships.

4. Expressions of regret may come with the legal precedents, but they are valueless unless accompanied by a cessation of the practices endangering lives of noncombatants.

5. The right of neutrals to travel any point of the high seas on neutral or belligerent merchantmen is asserted.

6. In the name of humanity and international law, the United States demands a guarantee that there be no repetition of the attacks on merchantmen carrying noncombatants.

7. The giving of warnings to the American public without officially communicating them to the United States Government is commented on in connection with the German embassy's printed advertisement before the sailing of the Lusitania, but, irrespective of the failure to advise the American Government of Germany's purpose, the point is made that notice of an intention to do an unlawful act neither justified nor legalized it.

8. The suggestion is conveyed that the German Government, of course, could not have intended to destroy innocent lives, and that consequently the German submarine commanders must have misunderstood their instructions. The American Government indicates its hope that this will be found to be true, and a cessation of the unlawful practices thereby will result.

9. In conclusion, Germany's attention is called to the earnestness of the Government and people of the United States in this situation. It is made plain that the United States will leave nothing undone either in diplomatic representation or other action to obtain a compliance by Germany to the request made.

LONDON PAPERS MILDLY DISCUSS WILSON'S SPEECH

Two Comment on It Before They Know It Had No Bearing on Lusitania Disaster.

LONDON, May 13.—The only London papers to comment editorially on the President's Philadelphia speech, assuming, before the receipt of his disavowal, that he had the Lusitania case and the consequent policy of the United States in mind, are the Standard and the Daily Express.

"It would be unjust as well as unmannerly," says the Standard, "to scoff at President Wilson's 'too proud to fight' speech. It is America's affair and hers only, what steps she cares to take to impress on Germany the enormity of her offense in taking over 100 American lives. English may think it just as useful to ask the wolf why he made the ewe bleat for the lamb as to expostulate with the German Government, but after all, it is no business of ours."

"We all know that it is not want of courage that makes the American people, despite their intense resentment, desirous to escape a ridiculous and unnecessary participation in the war. What ever else may be said of Mr. Wilson, he has shown moral courage of the highest order."

The Standard then goes on to contradict the German claim that either the British Government or the Cunard Line was in any way responsible for the disaster.

"Germany and Germany alone is answerable," it says. "It may be suggested with all deference that it would be a graceful act if President Wilson made it quite clear that he does not share the views of the German apologist section of his countrymen. Even if it should be found that inadequate precaution had been taken, the fact does not in the least shift the burden of responsibility."

The Express says: "The Wilson policy has been denounced by American politicians. Even a foreigner may remark that it seems to lack logic and enterprise. The Germans declare that America's one idea is to make money, and that as long as sufficient compensation is paid, she will make no trouble, whatever happens."

"We do not for one moment believe that this is true, but we quite understand that the super-pacifism of Washington should have led the never too intelligent Germans to believe that it represents the American mind. Germany has taken us back into the fourteenth century. President Wilson is apparently eager to drag us before our time into the twenty-second."

TURKS THREATENING TO SEND ALLIES' SUBJECTS TO WAR ZONE

PRESENT POLICY OF U. S. TO BE TO IGNORE DERNBURG

Government Does Not Want Publicly to Recognize Him by Ordering His Deportation.

PENALTY FOR NEWSPAPERS

Law Distinctly Covers Editorials Approving the Sinking of the Lusitania.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Apparently the administration, little as it approves of the activities of Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, Germany's nonofficial spokesman in this country, has no present intention of giving formal recognition to him by deporting him.

The German embassy has disclaimed responsibility for Dr. Dernburg. Consequently, so far as this Government has any knowledge, the former German Colonial Secretary is in this country purely as a private citizen of a friendly State, amenable to the laws, but entitled in all respects to immunity from persecution or extra-legal interference.

There appears to be a feeling in official circles here that any attempt to suppress the German propaganda would merely afford an opportunity for charges from other German sympathizers that the Government was trying to muzzle "public opinion."

No Law to Reach Dernburg. So far as officials of the Department of Justice have been able to ascertain, there is no law on the statute books which would apply to the utterances of Dernburg. It was pointed out today that even though Dr. Dernburg may have been guilty of making utterances through the mails, he could not be held to accountability for whatever he may have said in support of Germany's most recent practices on the high seas.

Newspaper editors in the United States who approved the sinking of Germany in torpedoing the Lusitania, are liable to a fine of $5000 and imprisonment for five years, or both.

Since the sinking of the Lusitania, many newspapers published in this country have editorially approved the destruction of this passenger ship and the great loss of life which resulted. Without waiting to have its attention called to the matter, the Department of Justice has before it an amendment to the penal code of the United States, which, if passed, would make it a crime to publish in this country, or to disseminate, any material which would be likely to incite to the commission of any crime.

"And the term 'incite' within the intent of this section shall include matter of a character tending to incite to murder and assassination."

A heavy penalty for such a sentence may be imposed in such cases. It is not the intention of the officials of the Department of Justice at this time to deal summarily with those publications which printed the infamous editorial in the New York Herald Tribune, or the provision of law which may be invoked, in order to serve as a warning to other publications whose editors might hold views similar to those expressed and circulated through this new mail since the sinking of the Lusitania.

Italians Flee From Austria; Troops Massing at Border.

UDINE, Italy, May 13.—Every preparation has been made for the proclamation of a state of siege in all the Austrian territory which borders on Italy. The Government already is in the hands of the police and military.

Italians whose homes are in Austria already have fled for safety across the frontier in great numbers. It is estimated that 40,000 would have left Trieste alone, while the total will aggregate 120,000. Large contingents of Austrian troops are constantly arriving at Trieste and points in Gora and Gradisca. It is asserted in military circles here that Austria has been quietly gathering its new army for possible operations against Italy.

At some points on the frontier Austrian and Italian troops are in such close contact that they can see each other. The Austrians have occupied strongly fortified entrenchments. The bridge leading to Pontebba, just across the Italian frontier, has been mined as have the bridges across the Isonzo River. Trains and automobiles which cross these bridges are compelled to travel at a snail's pace. Many German officers are with the Austrian troops camped near Gora and Trieste.

Body of Mrs. C. A. Plamondon of Chicago Found.

CHICAGO, May 12.—The body of Mrs. Charles A. Plamondon, for which relatives have been searching since the steamship Lusitania was torpedoed, was found yesterday in one of the morgues at Queenstown, Ireland, according to a cablegram received by Dr. John B. Murphy, whose wife is a sister of Mrs. Plamondon, from the American Consul at Queenstown. The body was identified by means of a coat and other clothing worn by Mrs. Plamondon. It has been turned over to the foreign representatives of Swift & Co., and will be returned to Chicago with that of her husband.

Responsibility on England Says Friend of the Kaiser

NEW YORK, May 13.

THE Tribune today prints the following from Baron Mumm von Schwartzstein, Councillor of the German Foreign office, and an intimate friend of the Kaiser.

"BERLIN, via The Hague, May 12.—In reply to your wireless, I can say that there is universal deep regret in Germany at the loss of human lives in the sinking of the Lusitania. The responsibility rests with England, who, through her plan of starving the entire civilized population of Germany, forced our country to retaliatory measures and answered the German offer to stop submarine warfare if the starvation plan was given up by even a more stringent blockade."

"England, wrongfully using neutral citizens as a shield against the attacks on the British war supply, must bear the responsibility for the victims to whom she carelessly assured safety on an armed vessel designed for the transportation of war materials and notoriously carrying 500 cases of war munitions."

"The Lusitania was warned so timely and so expressly that Germany even risked the success of her undertaking. England ridiculed the warning, and promised safety measures, thereby misleading the passengers, and then failed to take proper precautions."

"Germany regrets that Americans disregarded the well-meant German warnings, and hopes the American Government will now warn her own citizens against taking passage on armed British vessels carrying contraband. We are confident that when Americans know the full details, there can be nothing but the sinking of the Lusitania to disturb the good feeling between Germany and America."

"BARON MUMM VON SCHWARTZSTEIN."

AIR AND UNDERSEA WARFARE BELIEVED TO BE GERMAN PLAN

Reports of U. S. Observers Indicate She Will Rely Mainly on Aeroplanes and Submarines.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The confidential reports received in Washington from American observers in Europe have satisfied some of the leading military authorities that Germany will rely to a great extent hereafter on her submarines and air machines.

These reports indicate that the German Government is turning out submarines and air machines at a rate that never has been equalled. Army officers appear to be satisfied that the German aviators are preparing to attack the British navy with a fleet of several hundred air machines, in the hope that some of them may succeed in vitally damaging Great Britain's first line of defense.

Naval officers believe that Admiral von Tirpitz is preparing a similar attack under the water. American army observers have reported to Washington that the German line appears to be standing like a wall, and there is no reason to believe that the allied forces will be able to take the fighting into Germany in the near future.

It is believed here that Germany will have all the territory in the vicinity of her border so thoroughly mined that it will be impossible for the allies to make an advance over such ground.

St. Paul Pioneer Press Urges Action Against 'Spies' in This Country. ST. PAUL, May 13.—The Pioneer Press says editorially: "It appears that the Lusitania horror could not have been perpetrated as it was without collusion in this country. At least persons in New York had knowledge of it and presumably gave aid and counsel in its execution. This is a situation which may well claim the concern of the United States Government."

"We object to permitting the slaughter of our innocent citizens under any conditions. Whatever the implications, and precedents of the badly frayed international law, the United States has every moral right at least to assume charge of all spies or others abetting the business of taking American life. Let the secret service of the Department of Justice get into action."

"If we cannot hold Germany to 'strict accountability' for the loss of American life, the way is open for us at least to track down those enemies of the United States Government and people who abide among us in disguise."

UNNATURALIZED ALIENS CAN'T GO FISHIN' IN PENNSYLVANIA

Law Recently Approved Is Similar to One Which Denies Them Hunting Rights in State.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—Orders have been issued to all the wardens of the State Department of Fisheries to install the newly approved State law prohibiting unnaturalized foreign-born residents from fishing. A similar law prevents them from hunting.

The new fishing law provides for a fine of $20 for each violation, or a day in prison for each dollar of fine, and an unnaturalized foreign-born person who remains in the State 10 days is to be deemed a resident under the act.

ZAPATA FORCES ARE REPORTED TO BE ABANDONING MEXICO CITY

Capital Said to Be Left With Virtually No Garrison. Carranza Troops on Outskirts of Mexican City.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Dispatches today to the Carranza agency from Vera Cruz say the Zapata forces are being withdrawn from Mexico City and that the capital is being left with virtually no garrison.

Carranza troops, the dispatches say, are in the outskirts of Monterey.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in this city that receives its dispatches from the Associated Press.

Reported German View of Effect of German-American War on European Conflict

WASHINGTON, May 13.

IF statements made in diplomatic circles can be credited, Germany is not at all worried by the prospect of war with the United States. It was suggested in responsible quarters that she is looking for an excuse to break off relations because she is prepared to send a flotilla of 200 submarines on the high seas to destroy every munition or food-carrying vessel that leaves the United States for British and French ports.

The greatest single desire on the part of Germany, according to these diplomats, is to block the allies' supply of American-made guns and ammunition. To carry out this plan she would welcome an open rupture with the United States.

The American army is not taken seriously in Germany. The American navy would be of negligible value in the present conflict, according to the German military leaders, and the hostility of the United States would be more than balanced by the lessened quantity of war munitions shipped from this country. German diplomats insist that Russia will be helpless whenever the American supply of guns and ammunition is cut off, and her only hope lies in a continuance of importations from America.

MORE OF SHIP'S DEAD ARE BROUGHT INTO QUEENSTOWN

Search for Vanderbilt's Body Is Kept Up; Southern Ireland Watches for the Transylvania.

QUEENSTOWN, May 13.—A navy tug and a choppy sea interfered with the search today for bodies of the Lusitania's dead, but six more were found in the vicinity of Skull and several others were taken from under a life raft. These bodies were all placed on one tug to be brought into Queenstown.

All Southern Ireland is greatly excited over the outcome of the voyage of the Anchor Line steamer Transylvania, now nearing the war zone.

C. Haddon Chambers, the playwright, arrived in Queenstown today to take to Liverpool the body of Charles Frohman. Thence it will be shipped to the United States Saturday aboard the steamship New York.

Webb Ware, secretary of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, will remain at Cork so long as there appears to be any hope of recovering Mr. Vanderbilt's body.

A fishing boat last night reported having sighted no less than 100 bodies floating 10 miles south of Gladore, which is situated on the southwest coast of County Cork, a fact which upsets the contention that the current, the wind and the waves scattered the bodies of victims as to make the recovery of any considerable number of them questionable.

The news of the sighting of these bodies was conveyed to Ware, who has been most vigilant in search for Vanderbilt's body.

Among the 21 bodies landed here yesterday there were no prominent Americans.

Berlin Writer Says Lusitania's Sinking Is Worst Since "Titanic" Battleship.

LONDON, May 13.—The Daily News today prints in its editorial columns a quotation from the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, signed by Erich von Salmann, on the Lusitania, which in part runs as follows:

"England's world domination is gone forever; the mistress of the seas who oppressed the small nations with the most brutal ruthlessness and to whom North America knew how to react, a well-aimed smack in the face; a variable knockout of the boxing ring."

"The fact that we Germans destroyed this ship must make us proud of ourselves. The Lusitania case will obtain for us more respect than 100 battles would on land."

Americans in Paris Call on Wilson to Demand Reparation.

PARIS, May 13.—The American Chamber of Commerce in Paris has adopted resolutions calling on President Wilson to exact reparation from Germany for the loss of American lives by the torpedoing of the Lusitania.

Mississippi Governor Blames Passengers on Lusitania.

JACKSON, Miss., May 13.—Gov. Brewer of Mississippi, in a statement here today, declared that as Americans had been warned not to take passage on the British steamship Lusitania, he could not understand why the United States should quarrel with Germany because Americans lost their lives as a result of the torpedoing of the vessel.

"Americans were given fair warning to stay off," he said. "The passengers knew what to expect and took the risk."

ITALY PREPARING "GREEN BOOK"

Cabinet Will Inform Parliament of Policy It Followed.

ROME, May 13.—It is asserted that the Italian Cabinet is preparing a "Green Book" to be distributed in Parliament when that body resumes its sessions May 23, showing the policy followed by the Government in the late international events.

ROCKEFELLER WINS $1,500,000 TAX SUIT IN CLEVELAND

Federal District Court Grants Injunction, Holds Assessment Is Invalid.

CLEVELAND, O., May 13.—John D. Rockefeller today won an important victory in his fight to prevent the collection of taxes on $11,000,000 in personal property by Cuyahoga County, when Judge John H. Clarke, in United States District Court here, granted an injunction asked by Rockefeller. The taxes sought to be obtained amounted to $1,500,000, including a penalty of 10 per cent for failure to pay when due.

The assessment, which is held to be invalid, was made in Feb. 1914, when tax commissioners visited the Rockefeller summer home at Forest Hill here. They served papers on the "oil king," which alleged that he had remained in the county more than six months of the year and, therefore, under the Ohio law, was a resident of Ohio for taxation purposes.

Judge Clarke decided that Rockefeller's contention that he intended to leave Cleveland in October, 1914, instead of remaining here until February, 1915, due to the illness of Mrs. Rockefeller and her sister, Miss Louisa Spelman, was a valid excuse and did make him an Ohio resident under the meaning of the law.

MISS JULIA CHOUTEAU MAFFITT AND ROBERT H. KEISER ENGAGED

Formal Announcement to Be Made at a Tea Tomorrow—Bride and Groom Back to Their Childhood.

The engagement of Miss Julia Chouteau Maffitt and Robert H. Keiser will be announced formally tomorrow afternoon at a tea given by Mrs. Thomas Skinner Maffitt, but the news became generally known to their friends today.

Miss Maffitt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Chouteau Maffitt of 4215 Westminter place and the sister of William Maffitt. As her name indicates, she is a member of the Chouteau family and her mother was Miss Mary Skinner. She has been a belle for a number of seasons.

The affair is one of long standing; in fact, it is said to date back to the time when the Maffitts lived at 401 Washington avenue and the Keisers across the street and both were children.

Keiser is the son of the late John P. Keiser and lives at 44 Portland place. He is in the brokerage business; is president of the St. Louis Eye, Ear, Throat and Nose Infirmary, and was appointed to the Zoological Board recently by the Mayor.

The wedding will be in the early summer.

WOMAN SUES MAN'S ESTATE. TELLS OF 23 YEARS' DEVOTION

Milwaukee Resident Asks $400,000, Says Memphis Millionaire Promised to Leave Fortune to Her.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 13.—An old romance between Miss Mollie Quirk of Milwaukee and the late Patrick Kallahar was revealed here today when Miss Quirk filed suit in the Federal Court against the Bank of Commerce and Trust Co. of Memphis for $400,000.

The bank is executor for Kallahar's estate, valued at about a million dollars. Miss Quirk says she met Kallahar in 1888, when a girl of 18. She says that, on permission of her parents, he courted her, but that later her mother refused to permit the marriage, because of the difference in their ages. She respected her mother's wishes, she says, but maintained a friendship with him.

The plaintiff cites a contract she and Kallahar entered into in 1890 that she retain her affection and devotion for him and in payment he would leave her a large portion of his estate. His will, she claims, read accordingly. She says she nursed him through illness after illness, finally coming to Memphis, in June, 1912, and taking him to her home, where he died in October.

Kallahar made his money by investments in Memphis.

KAISER'S SUBJECTS IN ENGLAND BEATEN AND THEIR PROPERTY DESTROYED

GERMAN SHOPS IN ENGLAND BATTERED AND LOOTED AND KEEPERS ARE DRIVEN AWAY

Populace, Incensed by Sinking of Lusitania and Other Abuses, Engage in Riots in Many Cities—Women Among Those Who Participate.

LONDON, May 12.—The sinking of the Lusitania has aroused to a violent climax the smoldering hatred and animosity against Germany in England. This animosity has found expression during the last 24 hours in attacks on German shops in London and Liverpool, while there have been minor disturbances in Glasgow and a few other places.

Windows were smashed and some German shops were pillaged. The proprietors generally were driven away by angry crowds. None of the persons attacked are reported to have been seriously injured, but a considerable number were beaten and their clothes torn. One or two shops have been set on fire by the rioters.

A spontaneous movement has developed in the London market to boycott subjects of enemy countries and small dealers who appeared for supplies were driven away by crowds.

The police forces of both London and Liverpool have been depleted by enlistment and special constables have been called out to help the regulars. These constables, however, are mostly citizens, without experience in police work, and the mobs often have got the better of them. A number of policemen have been injured during the rioting.

Scotland Yard today issued an emergency call for all special constables to report immediately for duty. This would appear to be the only precautionary measure taken by the authorities this morning for the protection of Germans in England.

For the moment the anti-German rioting and attacks in the poor quarters of London and Liverpool, as well as in Manchester, Birkenhead, Glasgow, South End and elsewhere would appear to have ceased.

Many of the disturbances of peace were brought before the police courts and received punishment ranging from four months' imprisonment imposed on one Liverpool woman to a 4 shillings fine. In several instances English, Swiss and Russian shopkeepers, having been named as having been mistaken by the rioters for German establishments and suffered the same damage as the German shops.

The anti-German movement is in no wise confined to the lower classes of the population. There had been a general demand by the newspapers for the internment of all subjects of enemy countries. Premier Asquith has made a statement foreboding that the government will carry out the popular demand for placing these aliens in concentration camps.

It is estimated that there are 60,000 persons of German or Austrian birth outside the internment camps in England, of whom 20,000 are in London. The majority are engaged in humble occupations, as small shop keepers, barbers, waiters and workmen.

Fear Aid to Raiders. Some of the newspapers have been asserting that the recent Zepplin raiding London and starting fires was done at Southampton, these aliens would assist the raid by helping to light fires throughout the city. Some of the papers have also called attention to the wealthy immigrants of German birth as the most dangerous potential enemies, because of their facilities for furnishing information to the enemy.

The government did not call upon the military until late last night, when the riot at Southampton, provoked by a German airship raid in which an old woman was killed, led the General commanding the district to put the soldiers in charge of the town.

In almost every case women, girls and boys were the chief trouble makers, and when a shop was broken into they looted its contents, whether they were bread, meat, furniture or barbers' implements.

Following a demonstration earlier in the day at North Wolwich, a large crowd assembled last evening in South Wolwich and the shops owned by Germans were attacked and their windows broken.

In Lambeth, Kennington, Bow, Deptford, Finsbury, Islington and Wood-green—in fact in virtually all the poorer districts of the metropolis—shops belonging to aliens of enemy countries or of subjects of German descent were wrecked and their contents thrown into the street.

Shops of Some Natives Attacked. At Cannington, a furniture store was cleared of all its goods, even the pictures being taken from the wall, while in Limehouse every window of a large furniture factory was smashed. No distinction was made by the mob between Germans and persons of German descent, some of the shops damaged belonging to men born in this country of German parents. A German name on a signboard was sufficient to bring an attack from the infuriated mobs.

In one case the sufferer was the Town Councillor of Poplar, who was born in England and has associated himself with the public life of the borough all his life. Unfortunately for himself he bears a German name.

A baker shop attacked in Poplar was the gathering place for the local politicians. Its proprietor is a German in name only. He is one of the leading spirits of the district.

In this same neighborhood women attacked the wives of aliens in their homes, chased them through the streets and threw their belongings into the roadway.

Aliens Flee for Safety. There is hardly an establishment in London owned by a German, or which employs Germans, which has not been damaged, or which is not barricaded to prevent it from being damaged. Alien proprietors and alien assistants in such

Union of Widow of Titanic Victim and Postal Telegraph Head Expected.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—English and German clashed last night in the Cornell Methodist Episcopal Church, in East Seventy-sixth street, and the Germans retreated with dignity, carrying a Bible and a certain and determined to renew the attack today in the civil court.

The German department of the church, of which the Rev. Joseph S. Baun is pastor, has been holding services on the ground floor at 4 p. m. Sundays, while the English department, of which the Rev. James H. Lockwood is pastor, holds services in the second floor hall at 1 and 8 p. m. A month ago relations became so strained the German department was told to vacate by June 1.

Last night, after services, the Germans started out with the German Bible, certain which other articles for which they had paid. They were told that nothing could be taken from the church and then the quarrel started, the excitement becoming such that a patrolman was called. In the excitement the Bible and curtains were taken from the church.

The mob destroyed the German Liederkreis Club and pillaged the offices of the German Mining Corporation. This concern has an international board of directors, including some Germans. The crowd burned all the books, records and accessible papers of the company.

The offices of Sir George Alcock, near the Stock Exchange, were raided and a bonfire was kindled. The crowd also fired the premises of well-known German firm, Gunderlinger & Co., general merchants. The damage here alone was not less than $250,000, and the total losses from the rioting which broke out last night, are placed well over $1,000,000.

The wreckers worked methodically to the sound of whistles and in accordance with a list prepared in advance. There was no looting, the crowds simply carrying out a policy of retaliation.

The mob carried out the bodies of the Lusitania victims and "the murders of our prisoners of war are avenged," the German Club in Johannesburg was set on fire. Portraits of Emperor William, Bismarck and the Emperor of Austria were torn from the walls and thrown into the flames.

Breaking up into smaller bands, the wreckers set fire to German property in all directions. The entire center of Johannesburg soon was brilliantly illuminated, and further out in the suburbs blazing beacons could be seen at all points of the compass.

Blacklist of German Merchants in Chicago is Charged. CHICAGO, May 12.—Reports that German grocers and butchers are losing business from American middle class citizens in Hyde Park, Kenwood and on the North Side continued to grow today.

"Everybody has the privilege of getting his necessary supplies from who ever he chooses," declared the forum, said Horace Brand, a German editor to-day, "but if we have no right to harm others because of their creed or race, neutral Americans certainly are not privileged to blacklist their fellow citizens because of their descent."

"It is nevertheless a fact that in many districts in Chicago, German dealers have been blacklisted, but what if the Germans in Chicago would resort to the same retaliatory measures adopted by Germany against England? What if the local Germans, finding their economic existence endangered, should follow the example set and declare that they will buy from Germans only, will employ German workmen only, read no other than German papers and patronize such firms only which advertise in German papers? A community numbering three-quarters of a million could, without difficulty, take up an economic struggle forced upon it."

Property Worth $1,000,000 Destroyed in Johannesburg and South Africa. JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, May 12.—There have been a series of violent anti-German demonstrations in Johannesburg which culminated yesterday in the wrecking of a German department store and the burning of a number of German houses.

The police intervened to quell the disturbance, but they were virtually powerless. Altogether more than fifty buildings have been wholly or partly wrecked and their contents either burned or reduced to matchwood. The mob which was cleaned out include 10 large warehouses, 10 saloons, three hotels and more than twenty shops.

The mob destroyed the German Liederkreis Club and pillaged the offices of the German Mining Corporation. This concern has an international board of directors, including some Germans. The crowd burned all the books, records and accessible papers of the company.

The offices of Sir George Alcock, near the Stock Exchange, were raided and a bonfire was kindled. The crowd also fired the premises of well-known German firm, Gunderlinger & Co., general merchants. The damage here alone was not less than $250,000, and the total losses from the rioting which broke out last night, are placed well over $1,000,000.

AUSTRIAN PRESS PREPARES NATION FOR WAR ON ITALY

Post-Dispatch Man Finds Vienna Tense as Censorship Is Taken From Newspapers.

TROOPS GUARD FRONTIER Tyrolean Sharpshooters and Artillerists Guard Passes and Roads From South.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

VIENNA, via The Hague, May 12.—In the Tyrol the famous Tyrolean sharpshooters are guarding the cow-paths and the passes; batteries of heavy artillery and light mountain guns are trained on all the roads and approaches leading from Italy. To the southward German and Austrian troops are massed along the frontier, awaiting the decision of Italy for war or peace.

For the first time since the Austro-Italian question became acute the censorship muzzle has been taken from the Viennese press, which has not been allowed to discuss the negotiations. The Freie Presse, close to Government, announces that the situation is of the gravest, but there is still a flicker of hope.

It is evident that the press is preparing the public for the possibility of another foe being added to the list against Germany, Austria and Turkey, by rendering the curtain long over the negotiations and showing the gravity of the situation.

Suspense in Vienna. With a war cloud coming from Austria's southern and southeastern frontiers, and another looming from Russia in the East, where I came today, there is for the first time something like the tension of suspense in the air of Vienna.

Papers Warn Against Optimism. The Emperor received Premier Karl Sturgis in special audience this afternoon and there was a general military council this afternoon. I am informed that the relations between Austria-Hungary and Italy are not yet broken off, and to this the hopeful clinging as to the last straw. The afternoon papers warn the public against optimism; it can be said Vienna is prepared for the worst.

The gravity of the situation is to some extent counteracted by the news that 10,000 prisoners of war, including machine guns have been captured from the Russians in the Carpathian battles. Large numbers of Austrians and Germans, fleeing Italy, are reaching Vienna on every train. It was announced today that the sale of meat, except mutton, must be restricted to five days in the week.

AMERICAN "ATTACKING" FLEET MOBILIZING FOR MANEUVERS

"Defending" Ships Lie in Hudson River Awaiting Review by President Next Tuesday.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The setting of the great naval war game to be played off the Atlantic coast after the Atlantic fleet leaves here next Tuesday, already has begun, while the defending fleet lies in the Hudson River, awaiting the review by President Wilson next Monday.

Four vessels of the auxiliary fleet, which are to be used in the Admiral Beatty's attacking fleet are now steaming toward an unexplained rendezvous at sea, having left here yesterday.

The mobilization of the Atlantic fleet here had been completed today by the arrival of three divisions of the torpedo flotilla, which anchored in column along the New Jersey side of the river. Tonight 10,000 enlisted men are to attend boxing bouts and a vaudeville show given in Madison Square Garden for their exclusive entertainment.

BARBECUE AND MINSTREL SHOW FOR DRUMMERS OF MISSOURI

About 500 of Them on Hand for the Annual Convention and Incident Entertainment.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 12.—About 500 traveling salesmen arrived here today for the annual convention of the Missouri Drummer's Association, which will begin today and continue until Saturday night. A delegation of about 180 St. Louis drummers and 80 from Kansas City arrived on noon trains today. Nod Pooping's band from St. Louis has been engaged to furnish music.

The main features of the program are a monster barbecue to be given at Binder's Park Friday afternoon, and a minstrel show by convicts in the penitentiary Friday night.

Jimmie Gorman of St. Louis, president of the organization, and Secretary W. W. Phillips of Sedalia, arrived yesterday and began arranging with the Commercial Club for the entertainment of the visiting salesmen.

3 BROTHERS CLUBBED TO DEATH

Bodies Found in Farmhouse Near Lowell, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 12.—The bodies of three brothers were found late last night in their farm house near Lowell, Minn., 100 miles west of here. They had been murdered by being clubbed to death and had been dead three days. They were John, August and Stern Mittone.

Sheriff Gilbertson of Pope County organized a posse and started on a hunt for the slayer. Aid was asked from the Minneapolis police department and it is probable two detectives will be sent there today.

DOBYNE NEW G. A. R. COMMANDER

Next Encampment of Department Will Be Held in Kansas City.

HANOVER, Mo., May 12.—James B. Dobyne of St. Louis was today elected Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, which adjourned at noon. The next encampment will be held in Kansas City.

Other officers: Senior vice commander, John Hack, Trenton; Junior vice commander, L. K. Avery, Hannibal; chaplain, Rev. Thomas H. Hagerty, St. Louis; medical directors, Thomas Hawley, St. Louis; Council of administration, A. Whipple, C. W. Cookran, Francis H. Becker, Alfred Z. Artman, J. W. Lucas.

BLAZING VILLAGES LIGHTED FIGHTERS' FACES AT YPRES, BRITISH EYE-WITNESS SAYS

British and Germans Fought All Night With Ever Increasing Fury, He Writes—Sunday's Peace Shattered.

LONDON, May 12.—The official British "eyewitness" under date of May 11, gives an account of the German assault on Saturday and Sunday last to break the British lines around Ypres, and the commencement of the Anglo-French offensive north of Arras. He says:

"Early Saturday morning it became apparent that the Germans were preparing an attack in strength against our line running east and northeast from Ypres, for they were concentrating under cover of a violent artillery fire, and at about 10 o'clock the battle began in earnest."

Penetrated British Front. "At that hour the Germans attacked our line from the Ypres-Poelcapelle road to within a short distance of the Menin high road. Under this pressure our front was penetrated at some points around Fromenbergh and at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon we made a counter-attack between Zonnebeke road and the railway in order to recover the lost ground. Our offensive was conducted most gallantly, but was checked before long by the fire of machine guns."

"Meanwhile the enemy launched another attack through the woods south of the Menin road, and at the same time threatened our left to the north of Ypres with fresh men. Most desperate fighting ensued, the German infantry coming on again and again and gradually forcing our troops back, though only for a short distance, in spite of repeated counter attacks."

Battled Furiously All Night. "During the night the fighting continued to rage with ever increasing fury. It is impossible to say at exactly what hour our line was broken at different points, but it is certain that at one time the enemy's infantry poured through the village streets with German dead and pushing on regained most of the ground to the north of that point."

Blazing Villages Illumine Sky. "And so the fight surged to and fro, throughout the night. The scene of the conflict, the sky was lit up by the flashes of the guns and the light of blazing villages and farms, while against this background of smoke and flame looking out in the murky light over a crumbling ruin of the old town, rose the battered wreck of the cathedral tower and the spires of Cloth Hall."

"When Sunday dawned the firing for a time died down. The comparative lull enabled us to reorganize our position on the line we had taken up and to obtain some rest after the fatigue and strain of the night. In the afternoon the climax of the battle was reached, for under the cover of intense artillery fire, the Germans launched no less than five separate assaults against the east of the salient."

Germans Fight in Desperation. "To the north and northeast their attacks were not at first pressed to center as on the south of the Menin road, where the fighting was especially fierce. In the latter direction masses of infantry were hurled on with absolute desperation and were beaten off with corresponding slaughter."

"At one point, north of town, 500 of the enemy advanced from the wood, and it is affirmed by those present that not a single man of them escaped."

"On the eastern face, at 5:30 p. m. an endeavor was made to storm the grounds of the Chateau Hooge, a little north of the Menin road, but this was repulsed. It broke and fell back under the hail of shrapnel poured upon them by our guns. It was on this side, where they had to face the concentrated fire of guns, machine guns and rifles, again and again, in their efforts to break their way through that the Germans incurred their heaviest losses, and the ground was literally heaped with dead."

Saw Germans in Khaki. "During the day our troops saw some of the enemy busily employed in stripping the British dead in the trenches east of the Hooge Chateau and several Germans afterward were noticed dressed in khaki."

"So far as the Ypres region was concerned, our line was a most successful day. Our line, which on the northeast of the salient had after the previous day's fighting been reconstituted a short distance behind the original front, remained intact. Our losses were comparatively slight, and owing to the targets presented by the enemy the action resolved itself on our part into pure killing."

"The reason for this very determined effort to crush our left on the part of the Germans is not far to seek. It is probable that for some days previously they had been in possession of information which led them to suppose that we intended to apply pressure on the right of our line and that their great attack upon Ypres on the 7th, 8th and 9th was undertaken with a view to diverting us from our purpose."

Praises German Soldiers. "In this the Germans were true to their principles, for they rightly hold that the best manner of meeting an expected hostile offensive is to forestall it by attacking in some other quarter. In this instance their leaders acted with the utmost determination and energy and their soldiers fought with the greatest courage."

"The failure of their effort was due to the splendid endurance of our troops, who held the line around the salient under a fire which again and again blotted out whole lengths of the defenses and killed the defenders by scores. Time after time along those parts of the front selected for assault were parapets destroyed, and time after time did the thinning band of survivors build them up again and await the next onset as steadily as before."

"Further south in the meantime, on Sunday another struggle had been in progress on that portion of the front covered by the right of our line and the left of the French, for when the firing around Ypres was temporarily subsiding during the early hours of the morning another and even more tremendous cannonade was suddenly started by the artillery of the allies some 20 miles to the south."

Peaceful Sunday Scene. "The morning was calm, bright and clear, and opposite our right, as the sun rose, the scene in front of our line was the most peaceful imaginable. Away to the right were Cunchy, with its brick fields, and the ruins of Givency. To the north of them lay low ground, where, hidden by trees and hedge rows, ran the opposing lines that were about to become the scene of the conflict and beyond in the distance rose the long ridge of Aubers, the villages crowning it standing out clear cut against the sky."

"At 5 o'clock the bombardment began, slowly at first and then growing in volume until the whole air quivered with the rush of the larger shells and the earth shook with the concussion of the smaller ones. For five minutes the whole distance disappeared in a smoke and dust, which hung for a while in the still air and then drifted slowly across the line of battle."

"Shortly before 6 o'clock our infantry advanced along our front between the Bois Grenier and Festubert. On the left, north of Fromenbergh, we stormed the German line trenches. Hand-to-hand fighting went on for some time with bayonet, rifle and hand grenade, but we continued to hold onto this position throughout the day and caused the enemy very heavy losses, for not only were many Germans killed, but not only were some quarters all movement by day, light within range of our lines was rendered impracticable. At one place, opposite our center a convoy of ammunition was hit by a shell which knocked out six motor lorries and caused two to blow up. Opposite our center we fired two mines which did considerable damage to the enemy's defenses."

Aero Drops From Great Height. "During the day two aeroplanes attacked several points of importance. One of our airmen, who was sent to bomb the canal bridge near Don, was wounded on his way there, but continued, and fulfilled his mission. Near Wytschate one of our aviators pursued a German aeroplane and fired a whole belt from his machine gun at it. The Taube suddenly swerved, righted itself for a second and then descended from a height of several thousand feet straight to the ground. A British machine unfortunately was brought down over Lille by the enemy's anti-aircraft guns, but it is hoped that the aviator escaped."

In regard to the German allegation that the British used gas in their attacks on Hill 60, the eyewitness says: "No asphyxiating gases have been employed by us at any time, nor have they yet been brought into play by us."

The "eyewitness" also denies the German reports that German prisoners have been forced to go up in British aeroplanes.

MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN GREET THE TRADE-GETTERS

St. Louis Delegation Received With Enthusiasm All Along Route Into Iowa.

ALBIA, Ia., May 12.—When the special train carrying the St. Louis salesmen and their six-day trade extension tour, an Northern Missouri and Southern Iowa, reached Osceola, Ia., 1500 men, women and children greeted the delegation.

All marched from the station to the public square and there, Capt. Robert E. Lee, master of ceremonies, was presented to a key to the city. The key, which was a foot long, was made by boys in the Industrial School, and in return the delegation band gave an open air concert for an hour, and then the journey was resumed.

The trip of the special train and the object of the tour have been so widely advertised that all along the route there is a great din of factory whistles and a general display of enthusiasm. At Des Moines last night the delegation was entertained by the local Chamber of Commerce. The train departed from Des Moines at 3 a. m. and tonight will remain at Burlington.

BARNES ON STAND IN TRIAL OF HIS SUIT AGAINST T. R.

Plaintiff in $50,000 Action for Alleged Libel Tells of Relations With Colonel.

By Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 12.—William Barnes in the Supreme Court here today testified in his own behalf in his suit for $50,000 against Theodore Roosevelt for alleged libel.

Barnes said he was the publisher of the Evening Journal of Albany, at times had been the editorial writer of that newspaper, and was the responsible editor. Barnes said he was a member of the State Committee, 1892 to 1910, and in 1898 was appointed chairman of the Executive Committee by Odell.

"Later I was appointed to the committee on other occasions," he said. "My activities were confined to relieving the chairman of detail and doing work that was of no purpose. I went to the Fifth Avenue Hotel every day, read the mail, saw people whom the chairman did not care to see."

Barnes said he was not the controlling factor in the party's direction, adding that Senator Platt was the State leader.

Appointed by Roosevelt. Barnes said he met Roosevelt in the fall of 1898, the year he was nominated for Governor; that he voted for the Colonel, but did not attend any of the conferences at which his candidacy was discussed, and then continued:

"I remember meeting Col. Roosevelt on a train before he was inaugurated. I do not recall I ever met him on a train after that. After he was in office I called on him to pay my respects, as was customary. I did not see him in the Capitol for some time. My health was very poor and I spent most of my time at my house, my office and the Albany Country Club. I was then Surveyor of Customs, having been appointed by President McKinley. I was subsequently appointed to that office by President Roosevelt."

"I do not recall seeing Gov. Roosevelt during the first two months he was in office except twice. I have told you of the first occasion. Later I went to the executive mansion to see him. The visit was at his request. I found that he wanted to discuss with me some appointments I had made. He then discussed the election."

Asked whether he had called on Col. Roosevelt in the spring of 1899, Barnes told of seeing him at a dinner, and added: "I might have seen Col. Roosevelt in the executive mansion, I am not sure."

"Did you have a conversation, as testified to by Col. Roosevelt, about campaign contributions and the receipt of funds from men of financial prominence?" asked Attorney Ivins. Barnes said he would like to see the record before answering. He was instructed to inspect the record during the recess which was then taken.

Witness Yesterday Said T. R. Declared Republicans Needed Him. A witness for Barnes wrote yesterday that less than a year ago, Roosevelt agreed that the Republican party needed him, and said that he would "go after" President Wilson in his Pittsburgh speech, "and tear him to pieces."

Then, declared this witness, the former President asserted that, after what had happened at Chicago in 1912, the Republican party was not big enough to hold him and Barnes.

The witness was John W. Hutchinson, a New York lawyer, and chairman of the Speaker's Bureau of the Republican State Committee from 1906 to 1912.

W. J. Loeb is Contradicted. Hutchinson went on the witness stand after William J. Woolman, a New York broker, had contradicted the statements made last week by William J. Loeb, former secretary to President Roosevelt, and later Controller of the Port of New York.

Loeb testified that he talked to Barnes at Woolman's office in 1911, when the State Senate was deadlocked over the selection of a United States Senator to succeed Chauncey M. Depew. Under oath he said he had talked to Barnes about the deadlock and that Barnes said he could do nothing at the time to end it. Woolman said he had never seen Loeb until November, 1912, after Woodrow Wilson was elected President.

The majority of witnesses who preceded or followed Woolman and Hutchinson on the stand gave testimony to show that Barnes and Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall were not political allies at the time of the deadlock in the State Legislature, in contradiction of the witnesses who had testified for Col. Roosevelt.

Benjamin B. Odell, former Governor and Republican leader of New York, and at one time a member of Congress, testified principally about the early political career of Barnes and campaign contributions.

WOMAN TRAILS SHOPLIFTERS

Grand-Leader House Detective Has Two Men Arrested, Recovers Skirts.

Mrs. Kate Phelan, house detective at the Grand-Leader, and James M. Crawford, floorwalker in the same store, followed two men from the store to the second floor of the Mercantile Bank Building, 717 Locust street, a little after noon today and caused their arrest on a charge of shoplifting.

Mrs. Phelan told the police she had seen the men take eight silk skirts from a counter. The skirts were found behind a radiator in the corridor of the bank building. The men said they were William Smith, 25 years old, and Joseph Wacker, 25, both living at the Grand Hotel, 287 North Fifth street.

The men were taken to the police station and held in the city jail. They were released on $1000 bail each.

The Grand-Leader is a large department store located at 1000 North Fifth street. It is one of the largest stores in St. Louis.

The Mercantile Bank Building is a prominent landmark in downtown St. Louis. It was built in 1904 and is one of the tallest buildings in the city.

The Grand-Leader and the Mercantile Bank Building are both part of the downtown business district of St. Louis.

The Grand-Leader is owned by the Grand-Leader Company, which is a subsidiary of the Mercantile Bank Building.

The Grand-Leader is a popular shopping destination for St. Louisans and visitors alike. It offers a wide variety of goods at competitive prices.

The Grand-Leader is a member of the National Retail Federation, which is a trade organization for retailers.

BRITISH COMMITTEE SAYS IT HAS PROVED CHARGES OF GERMAN ATROCITIES

Lord Bryce and Associates Report They Found Invaders Carried on Systematic Massacres and Other Outrages in Belgium and Elsewhere.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 12.—Viscount Bryce, former British Ambassador at Washington and now chairman of a special Government Committee appointed to investigate and report on "outrages alleged to have been committed by German troops during the present war," has submitted the report of the committee to Premier Asquith.

The document is considered as probably the most severe arraignment thus far made of the German military sweep across Belgium, mainly because of the position of Viscount Bryce as a historian, and also because of the care with which the investigation was made, the great number of witnesses whose testimony was examined and the mass of evidence now submitted with the report of the committee.

Associated with Lord Bryce on the committee were Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir Edward Clarke, Sir Alfred Hopkinson, H. A. L. Fisher, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Sheffield; Harold Cox, and Kenelm E. Digby. The committee was appointed by Premier Asquith, Jan. 22 last, and was given broad instructions to investigate "alleged outrages, the maltreatment of civilians, and breaches of law and established usages of war."

The most important findings of the committee are summed up in the following conclusion at the close of the report:

"It will be seen that the committee has come to a definite conclusion upon each of the heads under which the evidence has been classified:

"It is proved:

"First: That there were in many parts of Belgium deliberate and systematically organized massacres of the civil population, accompanied by many isolated murders and other outrages.

"Second: That in the conduct of the war generally innocent civilians, both men and women, were murdered in large numbers, women violated, and children murdered.

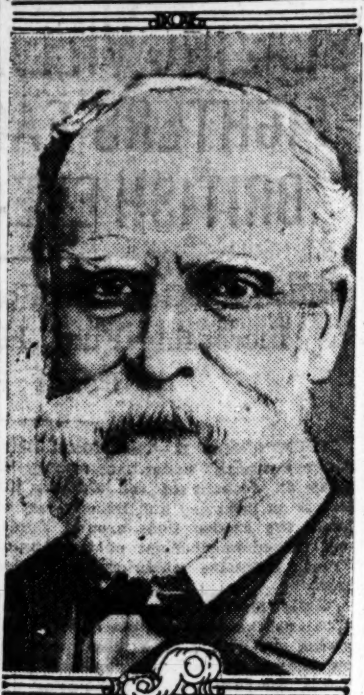

"Third: That looting, house burning, and the wanton destruction of property were ordered and countenanced by the officers of the German army; that elaborate provision had been made for the systematic incendiarism at the very outbreak of the war, and that the burning and destruction were frequent where no military necessity could be alleged, being indeed part of a system of general terrorism.

"Fourth: That the rules and usages of war were frequently broken, particularly by the using of civilians, including women and children, as a shield for advancing forces exposed to fire, to a less degree by killing the wounded and prisoners, and in the frequent abuse of the Red Cross and the White Flag.

"1300 Witnesses Examined.

The report makes an official document of 61 printed pages, or upward of 30,000 words, accompanied by maps, showing the various routes of the army and chief scenes of desolation. It states at the outset that 1300 witnesses have been examined, the depositions being taken by examiners of legal knowledge and experience, though without authority to administer an oath. The examiners were instructed not to "lead" the witnesses, and to seek to bring out the truth by cross-examination and otherwise. The committee also submits extracts from a number of diaries taken from the German dead, chiefly German soldiers and in some cases officers. "We began the inquiry with doubts whether a positive result would be obtained," says the report. "But the further we went and the more evidence we examined so much the more was our skepticism reduced. There might be some exaggeration in one witness, possible delusion in another, inaccuracies in a third. When, however, we found that things which at first seemed improbable were testified to by many witnesses coming from different places, the points in which they all agreed became more and more evidently true. When this concurrence of testimony showed itself in hundreds of depositions, the truth of the broad facts stood out beyond question.

Civilians Shot Indiscriminately.

Taking up the conditions at Liege, Belgium, at the outset of the war, the report gives a harrowing recital of occurrences at various points in the devastated territory. At Herve, on Aug. 4, the report says, "the murder of an innocent fugitive and civilian was a prelude to the burning and pillage of the town and of other villages in the neighborhood; to the indiscriminate shooting of civilians of both sexes and to the unorganized military execution of batches of selected males. Thus some 50 men escaping from burning houses were seized, taken outside the town and shot. At Melen, a hamlet west of Herve, 40 men were shot. In one house alone the father and mother (names given) were shot, the daughter died after being repeatedly outraged and the son was wounded.

"In Soumagne and Micheroux very many civilians were summarily shot. In a field belonging to a man named E—, 56 or 57 were put to death. A German officer said: 'You have shot at us.' One of the villagers asked to be allowed to speak and said: 'If you think these people fired, kill me, but let them go.' The answer was three volleys. The survivors were bayoneted. Their bodies were seen in the field that night by another witness. One at least had been mutilated. These were not the only victims in Soumagne. The eyewitness of the massacre saw, on his way home, 20 bodies, one that of a young girl of 13. Another witness saw 19 corpses in a meadow.

Priest Bayoneted.

"At Heurle Roman all the male inhabitants, including some bedridden old men were imprisoned in the church. The Burgomaster's brother and the priest were bayoneted. The village of Vise was completely destroyed. Officers directed the incendiaries, who worked methodically with benzine. Antiques and china were removed from the houses before their destruction by officers, who guarded the plunder, revolver in hand. "Entries in a German diary show that on Aug. 19 the German soldiers gave themselves up to debauchery in the streets of Liege, and on the night of the 20th a massacre took place in the streets. . . . $500,000 BONUS FOR EMPLOYEES OF HECLA MINING CO.

Workers to Receive Checks for Money Lost by Pay Cut During 8 Months Depression.

By Associated Press.

HOUGHTON, Mich., May 12.—Officials of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Co. announced here today that, on June 15, a bonus of more than $500,000 would be distributed among the 10,000 employees of the company and its subsidiaries.

On account of business depression, the corporation, on Sept. 1, 1914, passed its dividend, put employees on three-quarters time and reduced wages 10 per cent. Office employees, from manager to office boys, received a cut of 15 per cent.

When the copper situation began to improve and show a profit, the men were put back on full time and wages were advanced to the former scale.

The company announces that it will share its prosperity with employees by paying each man the money he forfeited during the eight months of depression by the reduction in pay.

This bonus will be put in one check at the first June payday. It amounts to over $200 in cases of high-grade contract miners and foremen. Every director of every corporation concerned, endorsed the plan.

The civilian population of Dinant gave any provocation, or that any other excuse can be put forward to justify the treatment inflicted upon its citizens.

The committee states that it has received a great mass of evidence on "scenes of chronic outrage" in the territory bounded by the towns of Aerschot, Malines, Vilvorde and Louvain.

The report states that the battle of Malines was the occasion later of "numerous murders committed by the German army in retreating through the villages; and in the second place it led to the massacres, plunderings and burnings at Louvain." The report adds:

"Evidence goes to show that deaths in these villages were due not to accident, but to deliberate purpose. The wounds were generally stabber cuts, and for the most part appear to have been inflicted with a bayonet.

Many Bodies in Malines.

"In Malines many bodies were seen. One witness saw a German soldier cut a woman's breast after he had murdered her, and saw many other dead bodies of women in the street. . . . In Hofstadt two witnesses speak of having seen the body of a young man pierced by bayonet thrusts, with the wrists cut also.

"On a side road the body of a civilian was seen on his doorstep with a bayonet wound in his stomach, and by his side the dead body of a boy of 5 or 6 with his hand nailed severely. Two young women were lying in the back-yard of a house. One had been stabbed; the other had been stabbed. A young man had been hacked with a bayonet. He had his hands joined in the attitude of prayer.

"In Semptet the body of a man with his legs cut off, was partly buried, was seen by a witness, who also saw a girl of 17 in great distress. She alleged that she and other girls had been dragged into a field, stripped and violated, and that some of them had been killed with a bayonet.

"At Elzev a naked body was tied up to a ring in the wall in the backyard of a house. He was dead and his body was mutilated. A woman's naked body also was found in a stable shunting on the same back yard.

"At Hasche a child of 3 with its stomach cut open by a bayonet was lying near a house. At Werchter the bodies of a man and a woman and four younger persons were found in one house.

"If this explanation be the true one, the mystery is solved, and that which seemed scarcely credible becomes more intelligible though not less pernicious."

Another division of the report is on the "killing of noncombatants in France." This is not as detailed as the account of Belgium, as the committee states that the French official report gives the most complete account as to the invaded districts in France. It adds:

"The evidence before us proves that, in the parts of France referred to, murder of unoffending civilians and other acts of cruelty were committed by some of the German troops."

Offenses Against Children.

"It is clearly shown," continues the report, "that many offenses were committed against infants and quite young children. On one occasion children were even roped together and used as a military screen against the enemy; on another three soldiers went into action carrying small children to protect themselves from flank fire. A shocking case of the murder of a baby by a drunken soldier at Malines is reported by one eyewitness and confirmed by another. . . .

Cases of the Red Cross being misused for offensive military purposes, and of abuse of the white flag also are given. As to the latter the report says:

"There is in our opinion sufficient evidence that these offenses have been frequent, deliberate and in many cases committed by whole units under orders. All the facts mentioned are in confirmation of The Hague convention, signed by the Great Powers, including France, Germany, Great Britain and the United States, in 1907."

TYPHUS IN TEN PRISON CAMPS

LONDON, May 13.—Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, has received through Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador at London, and James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, a dispatch which says that typhus fever is present in the following German prison camps, where there are British prisoners of war: Zossen, Altdamm, Schneidemuhl, Gardelagen, Wittenberg, Zerbst, Sagan, Cassel, Langensalza and Chemnitz.

The cases at Zossen are said to be confined to Russian prisoners and a few of the Indian troops.

U. S. POWDER FACTORY IS BEING GUARDED BY TROOPS

Coast Artillerymen Sent to Picatinny
Arsenal, Dover, N. J., on Washington Orders.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Four men of the coast artillery, United States army, from Fort Hamilton, New York, under command of Lieut. Lausot and Spaulding, are on duty at Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N. J., guarding the factory where much of the army powder is made. They were sent for this purpose in obedience to orders received from Washington late Saturday night.

This is the first time the army arsenal at Picatinny has been guarded, although the naval arsenal on the same reservation, a short distance away, has been guarded by a detachment of marines for years. The reservation is located at a lonely spot in the mountains, about six miles north of Dover.

No explanation for the guard was given in any official quarter, but it is believed the order was given in the fear that some crank might attempt to blow up the arsenal because of the excitement over the sinking of the Lusitania.

TEXAS EX-CAPTAIN OF MILITIA ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

George J. Head Arrested in Connection With Alleged Sale of Military Supplies.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., May 12.—George J. Head, who recently resigned as Captain in the Texas National Guard, was arrested here last night, charged with conspiracy and embezzlement, in connection with the alleged sale of ordnance of the War Department sent to the Texas National Guard. He was released by the local United States Commissioner under $3000 bond.

Head's arrest was in connection with the recent discovery of alleged unlawful sale of the army supplies by two former officers of the Texas National Guard.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bothers

(Modes of Today)
It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delicate handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little water, spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real depilatories.—ADV.

ST. LOUIS POLICE MERIT SYSTEM IS MODEL, HE SAYS

Raymond D. Fosdick, of New York, an Authority, to Recommend It to Other Cities.

Raymond D. Fosdick of New York, whose comprehensive study of police systems in Europe has recently been embodied in a book and whose study of American police systems has brought him to St. Louis, has found something in the St. Louis department which he is preparing to recommend to all other cities. He said this morning that the merit system here is unrivaled with the possible exception of the one in New York City, and he thinks ours may be superior to New York's.

"So far as I can discover," he said, "the merit system as handled by the Police Department's Efficiency Board is water tight. It is elastic enough for the 'examiner' and not the men about it to me is that it is not required by law, but was established by the department itself and is maintained by the department. I am told it gives satisfaction both to the men and to the commanding officers."

"In other places where there have been similar boards, the tendency has been to make the efficiency tests too academic. Manchester, England, for instance, found that its system was promoting the 'examiner' and not the men who were most valuable policemen. In St. Louis, I am told, mental tests are only a third of the examination, the rest of it being the policeman's practical fitness for his work."

The investigator also commended favorably upon the buildings and equipment of the St. Louis department, which he seemed to think unsurpassed. He seemed to think this advancement might be due to the fact that the department's annual appropriations are not under the control of the city government. In cities where this is the case, whenever financial paring has to be done it usually starts with the police.

One of the interesting features of his final report, Fosdick intimated, might be a study as to the relative value of municipally controlled police and state controlled police in the large cities. This is a problem so complex that he is unwilling to express an opinion until he can get hold of all the facts. From St. Louis the writer expects to go to Kansas City and from there to Denver.

DEAF MUTE BOY, 6, WALKS INTO AUTO TRUCK, IS KILLED

He Was Trying to Cross Street in Middle of Block, Three Witnesses Say.

Steve Czarniecki, 6 years old, a deaf mute, who was run over and killed by an auto truck in front of 144 North Thirtieth street, last evening, walked directly against the middle of the truck, according to three witnesses who reported to the police today. The boy lived with his parents at 1216 Cass avenue.

The three witnesses told the police they saw the boy start to cross the street from west to east about the middle of the block. They said the auto truck, owned by the St. Louis Hide and Tanning Co. and driven by a negro, Jonas Bricey, was not going faster than six miles an hour.

They said Bricey shouted at the boy, which he was unable to hear because of his deafness. The boy was crushed by a rear wheel.

NEGRO SHOT IN SALOON ROW

Wounded Man Dies While Being Ferried Across the River.

Responding to a telephone message that a murder had been committed at the ferry landing on Davis street, police of the Carondelet District went there at 7 o'clock last night and found the dead body of Joseph Polk, a negro, 31 years old, of East Carondelet. He had been shot in the breast. The body was taken to the morgue.

From Charles Polk, a brother of the slain man, the police learned the shooting was done by Willie Walls, another negro, in a saloon at East Carondelet. Walls was arrested by the East Side authorities and Polk was shipped across the river on a ferry boat. He died en route.

BODY FROM RIVER IDENTIFIED

W. F. Burnmaster Suffered Breakdown From Overstudy.

The body of a man taken from the river at the foot of Victor street two days ago was identified yesterday afternoon as that of William F. Burnmaster, 26 years old, of 2115 McNair avenue, who had been missing since Feb. 16.

According to Burnmaster's father, Frank Burnmaster, the young man suffered a nervous breakdown on Jan. 3 as the result of overstudy and, under orders of a physician, ceased attending night school. He was despondent at having to give up his studies. He was employed as bookkeeper at 85 Locust street.

HAYWOOD DESCRIBES LABOR'S IDEAL AS ONE GREAT UNION

Favors Revolution, if Necessary, to Bring About Elimination of Capital.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Inquiry into the relations between capital and labor was continued today before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission, with William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World again on the witness stand.

Haywood yesterday outlined to the commission the ideal era of freedom for which he said labor is striving. He described it as a world in which one big union would control all means of production and in which there should be no such thing as "capital." This could be brought about, he said, only through implacable war between labor and capital, ending with a great general strike and confiscation of the means of production.

"I believe in any kind of tactics," said the witness in reply to questions. "I don't care if it means revolution."

In the new era, Haywood said, there would be no great cities.

"What is to become of New York, Chicago and the other great cities?" he was asked. "There would be no idle brokers, lawyers and financiers to occupy such cities," replied the witness.

"But what would you do with New York?" "Tear it down or leave it as a monument to the foolishness of this age."

"AMERICA MUST DEMAND REDRESS FROM GERMANY THOUGH EXPECTING NONE"

Lorenzo Semple Believes Refusal Would Be Cue to Sever Diplomatic Relations and Invite Other Neutrals to Join in Guarding War Zones.

NEW YORK, May 13. LORENZO SEMPLE has written for the Post-Dispatch and the New York World an opinion on the sinking of the Lusitania. Semple, a member of Congress, is a graduate of Annapolis and spent 13 years at sea as an officer of the navy before entering the law. He has been closely affiliated with Paul Fuller, who some months ago visited Mexico as a special representative of President Wilson.

By LORENZO SEMPLE. The situation created by the sinking of the Lusitania is full of such grave possibilities that nothing should be said about it unless it tends to assist the President and his advisers. The situation is greatly aggravated by the announcements from Berlin—said to be official—and by the utterance of Dr. Dernburg, who has been recognized as at least the semi-official spokesman of the Berlin Government. It also is aggravated by unusual procedure adopted by the Imperial embassy at Washington of directly communicating with the American people by way of warning, instead of employing the only diplomatic method hitherto known of dealing with our Government through the office of the Secretary of State.

The situation created by the sinking of the Lusitania, the approval of it by the Berlin Government and the threat conveyed by Dr. Dernburg that American citizens—non-combatants—will not be protected from slaughter if they sail on any English vessel, or even if they sail on any American vessel which happens to have in its cargo a case of arms—is so acute that it must within the briefest period be met and be disposed of.

Must Observe Diplomatic Forms. To submit to the continuance of the situation so created by the action of Germany, would be to concede to Germany the right to put an embargo upon our commerce, limited only by German concession.

We must, however, observe all the forms of decent controversy which the Germans have in this case so completely ignored. We must demand a disavowal, an explanation and a security against the repetition of the offense. We must do this although we may be morally convinced, through the dispatches from Berlin and the utterances of Dr. Dernburg, that this precaution and courtesy can result in nothing. We can scarcely be the judges of that, and all the laws and customs of international intercourse require us to give the Germans the opportunity of offering redress for the harm done and security against its repetition.

If such a demand should not bring redress, then we must find some immediate method of enforcing redress ourselves. And the first step in that direction would be the severance of diplomatic relations and the abandonment of the neutrality we have so carefully observed. This might be followed by an open invitation to all other neutral nations to unite with us in protecting the safety of neutrality zones and the freedom of their commerce by joint action, which will place Germany outside the pale of civilized intercourse.

Would Influence Other Neutrals. The moral effect of a clear disavowal taken by the United States on this subject will in all probability turn the scale of the wavering attitude of Italy, Roumania and Greece and put them into the field against the German, Austrian and Turkish alliance. Another probable immediate result would be that the large quantities of provisions and clothing which up to the present time have been supplied to Germany through neutral ports would at once cease.

Dr. Dernburg seems to have instilled into the minds of the Government of Berlin that it could count upon the infidelity of naturalized German-Americans in case of such a rupture. I believe that this is a libel on the great majority of Germans who have sought shelter and found freedom and profit under the United States flag. If, unfortunately, Dr. Dernburg's prognostications in this regard are at all sound, it is better that we should know the truth now rather than later.

SALOON KEEPER SHOTS ROBBER WITH THE MAN'S OWN REVOLVER

He Seized Weapon When Pockets Were Searched—Another Man Robbed. St. Louis, May 13.—Both cases. Two men entered the saloon of Louis Burns, 2301 Biddle street, a few minutes before 12 o'clock last night and called for beer. When the proprietor turned to serve them the taller of the two drew a revolver and ordered him to get into the lobby.

While one of them was robbing the money drawer behind the bar, the other was searching Burns. He took $5, a watch, chain and locket from the saloon man's pockets, and was reaching into a hip pocket, where Burns carried $100 in bills, when Burns seized the robber's revolver from him, struck him on the head with it and fired a shot at him pointblank.

The robber reeled and then fled, dropping his hat as he ran out through a back door. The other robber broke a glass panel in the front door in his haste to get away. He took $24 of Burns' money.

Burns gave the police the robber's revolver and hat. He said he was a positive he wounded the robber, as there was only a short space between them when he fired. Patrick Ahearn of 2218 O'Fallon street, who was in the saloon at the time of the robbery, was taken to the Dayton Street Police Station as a witness.

GIRL, 15, DRIVER OF AUTO THAT HITS BOY, ARRESTED

Police Charge Yetta Schwartz With Leaving Scene Without Offering to Aid Injured.

Yetta Schwartz, 15 years old, who was driving an automobile when a boy was seriously injured by it at Nineteenth and Wash streets yesterday afternoon, was arrested last night on the technical charge of "leaving the scene of an accident." The police say she fled without offering assistance to the boy.

The injured boy is Harvey King, 10 years old, son of George King, 321 North Ninth street. The automobile belonged to Yetta's sister, Miss Tillie Schwartz, 2219 Carr street, manager of a moving picture theater at 515 Franklin avenue. The girl was traced by the license number on the car and was arrested at the picture theater after policemen had sought her at her home. She was later released on bond.

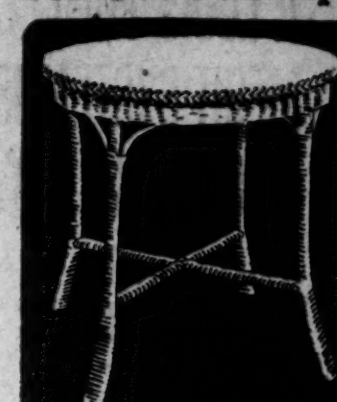

King's condition is said to be serious. He suffered from a concussion of the brain and other internal injuries.

Summer Dress Sale at $5.95

Providing "End-of-the-Season" Values on the Very Threshold of Summer.

An event as important as this is not the result of chance—but the outcome of several months of careful planning. Through close co-operation with several manufacturers—through being satisfied with a very small margin of profit—we are able to present a collection of styles, materials and trimmings worth far in excess of our sale price.

When we state that there are Dresses of plain, striped and figured voile, with fancy vests of organdie; linen in all shades; plain and embroidered lingerie, etc., etc.—we do not properly picture to you the rare elegance of these Dresses—their smartness, style and general excellence.

If you've been intending to pay up to $10, do not fail to see this assortment. Why spend $8, $9 or $10 when you can secure just as much style and service at Sonnenfeld's Friday for

RAILROADS URGE REBER APPROACH TO FREE BRIDGE

East Side Lines Would Do Away With Associated Retailers' Extension.

A plan to build the east approach of the free bridge along the original line of the Reber approach, without the so-called associated retailers' extension, has been placed before the Board of Public Service by some of the East Side railroads, through the Terminals Committee of the Business Men's League.

The original Reber approach ends within the line of the Terminal Association's outer belt, near Twenty-first street, East St. Louis. This was opposed in bond issue campaigns for the completion of the bridge, on the ground that it would mean the bottling of the bridge approach by the Terminal Association.

Accordingly, the approach was extended 800 feet, to Twenty-ninth street, outside the Terminal outer belt and also outside the East St. Louis city limits. This action was taken upon the suggestion of the Associated Retailers, hence the new proposed approach took the name of the organization. The city purchased the land needed for this extension.

Since the Reber approach was first projected, the United States Supreme Court has decided that the Terminal Association must grant its facilities, on equal terms, to any railroad desiring to use them. It has been argued that this would render the "bottling" of the approach, as originally feared, impossible. Railroad officials now say the plain Reber approach will make it much easier for existing railroads to use the bridge, and they point out that the retailers' approach requires a curve on an elevated track which is considered undesirable.

A conference was held at the Business Men's League headquarters a few days ago, at which some of the roads were represented, and at which James A. Hooke, Director of Public Utilities, was present. C. W. Nelson, vice president of the Cotton Belt, advocated the plan for the short approach. Henry F. Hafner, president of the Hafner Manufacturing Co., was chairman, and he was authorized to arrange for a later meeting, at which representatives of all the East Side lines, and members of the Board of Public Service, may confer.

As the city is soon to advertise for bids for the approach, the length of the approach will have to be determined before long.

DIVORCES MAN WHO THREATENED TO END LIFE WITH BUTTON HOOK

Mrs. Winifred White Says Husband Was Morose and Cursed Her—Two Other Divorces Granted.

Mrs. Winifred K. White of Midland Heights was given a divorce by Judge Wurdeman in the Clayton Circuit Court yesterday from Theodore M. White. She testified that he once threatened to kill himself with a finger-nail file and at another time with a button hook, and that he was morose, cursed her and once struck her. White was not in court, but was represented by an attorney. Mrs. White was given the custody of the children, Barbara, 4, and John, 2, and a stipulation was filed allowing her $20 a month for their care until they are of age.

Mrs. Amelia G. Williams, 17 years old, of Webster Groves, was given a divorce from John F. Williams. She testified that she had known Williams only two days when she eloped with him to East St. Louis, Jan. 28, 1914. He left her Feb. 28, 1914.

Harry E. White, who said he lived at the Park Hotel, was given a divorce from Isabelle N. White on the ground of desertion. He testified that the marriage was Feb. 2, 1908, and that she deserted him in 1908. Judge Wurdeman questioned him closely about his residence. He said he traveled constantly as an insurance man, but lived at the Park Hotel as much as he lived anywhere. Judge Wurdeman said he looked on all such cases with suspicion. He thought there should be a law requiring residence of six months in the county, before filing a divorce suit.

FRIEND GONE WITH HER $200

Story of "Two Suspicious Negroes" Fools Proprietor of Restaurant.

Mrs. Lillian Wilcox was alone in her restaurant, 2444 Market street, when a young man she had known for some time entered about 12:30 o'clock this morning, and informed her that two suspicious-looking negroes were lurking outside. He suggested that she had better entrust her money to him, and she gave him $200, all she had. She also gave him a revolver with which to defend himself and requested him to take the money to her rooms above the restaurant.

The young man left and Mrs. Wilcox has not seen him or her money since. At 6 o'clock this morning she asked the police to look for him.

SELF SACRIFICE WEEK TO AID FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

All the Proceeds to Be Devoted Exclusively to Efforts to Checking Spread of the Plague.

The St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis will conduct a "Self-Sacrifice Week" next month. Funds to be used exclusively in fighting the spread of tuberculosis. The arrangements were made yesterday by the Finance Committee in accordance with plans submitted by Mrs. Arthur Lieber, who started the waste paper collection campaign for the benefit of the society, about two years ago, and called it "Red Ribbon Day."

"Self-Sacrifice Week" was originated in Philadelphia to help take care of the unemployed last winter.

Thinness Easily Overcome.

(From "Health and Beauty.") Further evidence is being presented almost daily that a recent compound of new chemical elements combined in a tablet with hypophosphites is in reality proving a blessing to the abnormally thin men and women for it can be demonstrated beyond doubt that a regular course of three or four months' treatment brings an increase in weight of from 10 to 30 pounds, with a decided improvement in health and color, too, for self-administration the most popular form is to be found in three grain hypo-nutrient tablets, obtainable in sealed packages from the best apothecary shops, with full directions.—ADVERTISEMENT.

NAVY RESERVE TO BE PROMOTED

Naval Veterans of St. Louis Will Hold Open Meeting Saturday Evening.

The United States Naval Veterans of St. Louis will hold an open meeting Saturday evening, for the purpose of promoting organization of a navy reserve, to be composed of all men who have served in the navy and have been honorably discharged. Lieut. Peterson of the United States navy and Capt. Schwartz of the Missouri Naval Militia will be the principal speakers.

The Naval Veterans have banded themselves to keep up the spirit of the navy in St. Louis. The object is to promote the welfare, good fellowship and mutual benefit of all men who are serving or have served in the navy or marine corps. Information may be obtained from Frank W. Fisher, 4570A, Maffitt avenue.

Dr. Padberg to Talk on "Safety First" "Self-Preservation as a Means of Safety First" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Louis Padberg, City Councillor, at the Central Y. M. C. A., Grand and Franklin avenues, this evening.

Following Dr. Padberg's lecture, a free demonstration of life-saving and swimming will be given in the pool.

COUNT APPONYI SAYS RUSSIA IS EUROPE'S MENACE

Hungarian Opposition Leader Suggests Coalition of Western Powers After War.

TALKS OF WAR'S OUTCOME

Victory by Dual Allies Would Mean Little Change in Boundaries, He Believes.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 26.—Count Albert Apponyi, the veteran Hungarian opposition party leader, former Minister and President of Parliament, who is widely known in the United States because of his lecture tour of four years ago, has received the correspondent of the Associated Press and discussed frankly, not only present war conditions in his country, but what the European struggle may bring forth. He is a thorough optimist.

"I see no reason why, after this war, some understanding of the Western European Powers shouldn't come," he said. "Austria and Hungary have no serious points of conflict with England, and France, after 1870, had to make an effort to regain her lost provinces from Germany, but she must now see that the attempt is hopeless. She has had the assistance of the strongest possible coalition which could be arranged to help her gain her desire, and is farther than ever from success. It would be possible, I think, after the war, to reconcile her to the loss of some concessions regarding the autonomy of Alsace-Lorraine and enable her to enter the new coalition. England, too, would have to give up her aspirations to absolute naval superiority over all the rest of the world—a domineering policy which would enable her to dictate the affairs of the world—and content herself with the position of the first naval power."

Count Apponyi spoke at great length of the causes of the war, expressing regret that Americans were inclined to attribute it to an attack by Austria on Serbia and ignore Russia's real object of gaining egress from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean and establish a Slav protectorate on the shore of the Adriatic. In asserting that the war was due to a premeditated attack by Russia which had been in preparation since the Russo-Japanese War, Count Apponyi continued:

"We Hungarians feel that the struggle for us is one of very existence. There can never be any security for Western Europe so long as Russia is allowed to play a role in European affairs. Her whole history is one of conquest to expand the territory under her control. What must come to meet this danger to Europe is a coalition of the West European Powers against Russia."

The Hungarian leaders voiced a thought to which many high-placed men of Germany and Austria-Hungary are giving utterance—that the next thing on the cards after the war would be some form of understanding between the two protagonists in the present struggle—England and Germany.

The war, Count Apponyi believes, will produce comparatively little change in the present map of Europe, assuming that Germany and Austria-Hungary are successful. There will be no need, he said, to roll up the map of Europe and draft a new set of boundaries, certainly not in the West. In the East he looks for some settlement of the Polish problem, under which Poland will belong to the West as a barrier against Russia.

Przemysl's Fall "Inevitable." In discussing the present situation the opposition leader made his only criticism of the Government now in power. The people's spirits, he said, were naturally affected by the fall of Przemysl—an event which was inexcusable. The fortress itself was impregnable to assault. The military authorities, he said, must have known at the opening of the war that it would be impossible to hold Galicia against the Russian masses and that it would be necessary to fall back slowly through Galicia to the natural defensive frontier—the Carpathians.

Przemysl should have been provisioned for at least a year. Why it was not, said Count Apponyi, would be a subject for inquiry after the war.

Another mistake attributed by the Count to the military authorities was under estimating the force which the Russians could throw into the field against Austria-Hungary at the beginning of the war. It had been thought that several months would pass and a large Austro-Hungarian army was detached for operations against Serbia on this assumption. Russia was found, however, to be already virtually on a war footing and ready to pour her armies into Galicia from the very first.

In view of this condition, said the Count, the Austro-Hungarian leaders should have in the beginning followed the policy now adopted of leaving on the Serbian frontier a force only strong enough to protect the border against invasion and throwing against the Russians the whole strength of the army. In this case the Russians, with their hundred divisions, would not have been able to fall so overwhelmingly on the 40 or so divisions of the Austro-Hungarian army.

Won't Admit Loss of Galicia. Count Apponyi said he did not admit that Galicia had been lost to the dual monarchy.

"We have already driven the Russians from Bukovina," he said, "why not from Galicia? But even taking the extreme case of the pessimists and granting that our armies are not able to drive the Russians back on Russian soil, I would point out that the armies of Germany and Austria-Hungary are already in possession of several thousand square miles of Russian Poland. The area of this, it is true, may not be quite as large as that of the parts of Galicia occupied by the Russians, but the population is greater. In riches, the parts of Russian Poland occupied by us exceed Galicia. In addition, Germany holds virtually all of Belgium and Northern France, so there is no doubt that if the war should cease under present conditions we should get back Galicia."

The aims for which Germany and Austria-Hungary are fighting, the Count thought, were already attained, for it would be many long years before any Power or group of Powers would venture to attack them again.

Talks of United States. Talking of the sale of American munitions of war to the enemies of the Teutonic allies, the Count said: "Sentiment in Austria-Hungary is not so intensely anti-American on this account as in Germany, but we feel that the war would soon be over if the United States would stop supplying artillery and ammunition to Russia. At the beginning of the war Russia had an immense superiority in artillery and great supplies of ammunition for it. Now she has lost so much cannon and has fired away so much ammunition that she is barely able to hold her own, and we feel that without help from America this would be impossible for her. We realize that formal right may be on the side of the United States in this question, but it is hard to talk of formal right to some one whose son, father or brother has been killed by an American bullet."

City Bank announced today it had negotiated a loan to the Bolivian Government of $1,000,000. The loan is payable in one and two years.

It is believed the loan will be of much assistance in helping the Bolivian Government over the difficulties it has experienced in connection with the European war. This is not the first loan made by the National City Bank to the Government.

Other American bankers have also negotiated loans at various times. J. P. Morgan & Co. having taken $2,500,000 of 6 per cent bonds in 1909.

TAFT GIVES PLAN FOR WORLD PEACE LEAGUE AND COURT

Former President, at World Congress, Suggests Force as Stay to Premature War.

CLEVELAND, O., May 13.—Henry C. Taft was the chief speaker at the forenoon session of the World's Court Congress, a movement formally launched here yesterday afternoon, which, its advocates claim, is the greatest advance yet taken toward lasting peace among the world powers. Prominent men from all over the country are present and William H. Taft and Alton B. Parker were speakers last night.

Mr. Taft alluded briefly to the delicate situation in which the United States finds itself as a result of the war. He said:

"At a time when nearly all of Europe is at war and our country is uncomfortably near to the disturbance, the launching of a plan for an international court of justice seems propitious."

Referring to the prospect of accomplishment by the court, he said: "A movement like this loses force by making claims of what it will accomplish. But we are trying to be practical. We are not rainbow chasers and we are not offering a millennium."

Mr. Taft, in outlining his plan for the establishment of a League of Peace and Arbitral Court with the object of settling by arbitration differences between the nations of the world and preventing further war, explained that such a league should include all the great nations, with an agreement that should any signatory power begin war against another member without first submitting its grievances to the court, all the other signatories would be bound to join in a forceful defense of members thus prematurely attacked.

That this idea of an international tribunal is practical and feasible, Mr. Taft said, is shown by the successful operation of the constitutional courts of arbitration in this country, which have settled controversies between the states, and so-called general treaties, negotiated by Philander C. Knox while Secretary of State, with France and England, to submit justifiable disputes to arbitration. Mr. Taft explained at length the methods employed in adjusting interstate differences, asserting that the procedure is analogous to that of the international court which he proposes.

"I am aware that membership in this league would involve on the part of the United States an obligation to take part in European and Asiatic wars," he said, "and that in this respect, it would be a departure from the traditional policy of the United States in avoiding entangling alliances with European or Asiatic countries. But I conceive that the interest of the United States in and the close relations it has of a business and social character with other countries, much closer now than ever before, would justify it if such a league could be formed, running the risk that there might be of such a war in making more probable the securing of the inestimable boon of peace of the world, that now seems so far away."

Canada Takes a Case to Point.

Mr. Taft also pointed out in support of his plan the amicable settlement of issues between the people of the United States and Canada, "which, because of their nature, might have led to war."

"It is not too much to say," he added, "that the 'habit' of arbitration is so fixed that a treaty to secure such a settlement in future issues would not make it more certain than it is. It is interesting to note that we have two permanent arbitral English-American commissions settling questions."

"To constitute an effective League of Peace we do not need all the nations. Such an agreement between eight or nine of the great Powers of Europe, Asia and America would furnish a useful restraint upon possible war. The successful establishment of a peace league between the great Powers would draw into it very quickly the less powerful nations."

"What should be the fundamental plan of the league?"

"In the first place, it ought to provide for the formation of a Court which would be given jurisdiction by the consent of all the members of the league to consider and decide justiciable questions between them, or any of them, which have not yielded to negotiations according to the principles of the international law and equity, so that the Court should be vested with power, upon application of any member of the league, to decide the issue as to whether the question arising is justiciable."

"2. A commission of conciliation for the consideration and recommendation of a solution of all nonjusticiable questions that may arise between the members should be created, and this commission should have power to hear evidence, investigate the causes of differences and mediate between the parties and then make its recommendation for a settlement."

"3. Conferences should be held from time to time to agree upon principles of international law not already established as their necessity shall suggest themselves. When the conclusions of the commission shall have been submitted to the various parties to the league for a reasonable time, say a year, without calling forth objection, it shall be deemed that they acquiesce in the principles thus declared."

Peace Resources Gained When Force.

"4. The members of the league shall agree that if any member of the league, without first having submitted the question, if found justiciable, to the arbitral court provided in the fundamental compact, or without submitting the question, if found non-justiciable, to the commission of conciliation for its examination, consideration and recommendation, then the remaining members of the league agree to join in the forcible defense of the members thus prematurely attacked."

Mr. Taft said that the principle of the general arbitration treaties with England and France should be embraced in an effective League of Peace.

"We must recognize, however, that the question within the jurisdiction of such a court would certainly not include all the questions that might lead to war, and therefore we should provide some other instrumentality for helping the solution of those questions, which are non-justiciable. This might well be a commission of conciliation to investigate the facts and to formulate and recommend a settlement. We have an example of such a commission of conciliation in the controversy between the United States and Great Britain over the seal fisheries."

"Undoubtedly the function of an Arbitral Court established in the interest of the above suggestion would lead to a good deal of valuable judge-made international law. But that would not cover the whole field. Something in the nature of legislation on the subject would be a valuable supplement to international law."

"It is to be observed that the fourth amendment does not involve the members of the league in an obligation to enforce the judgment of the court or of the recommendations of the commission of conciliation. It only furnishes the instrumentality offered to prevent attack without submission. The required submission and the delay incident thereto, to will in most cases lead to acquiescence in the judgment of the court or in the recommendation of the commission of conciliation. The threat of force against unjust war—for that is what is involved in the provision—will have a most salutary deterrent effect."

G. W. SIMMONS TELLS POLICE HOW MAN GOT $35 FROM HIM

Hardware Firm Official Says He Thinks Man was Impersonating
Another.

George W. Simmons, vice-president of the Simmons Hardware Co., yesterday told how a man about 25 years old, giving the name of Harry Lapoint, borrowed $35 from him April 9, ostensibly to pay for a consignment of magazines. Simmons said the man told him he conducted a newsstand at Eighth and Olive streets. Simmons today said he thought the man was impersonating another man who formerly delivered papers at his home. Investigation by the police proved the corner in question has been occupied for 20 years by George L. Ackerman of 812 Westminster, a one-legged man. Simmons said the borrower had two perfectly good legs and was certainly not Ackerman. Ackerman said a stranger, apparently from the country, approached him at 7.30 a. m. today and said he would take charge of the stand, as a friend had purchased it. Ackerman explained he was still in possession of the corner.

STARKLOFF FAVORS HEALTH TEST FOR HANDLERS OF FOOD

Health Commissioner Points Out
Plan Already Is in Operation in Dairies.

RAILROADS PRACTICE IT

75 Per Cent of Applicants for Dining Car Service on One Line Rejected.

Health Commissioner Starkloff said this morning that he and his department was in sympathy with a movement started by the Medical Society of the City Hospital Alumni to provide legislation preventing any person suffering from a communicable disease to serve as a cook or waiter in any hotel, club or restaurant. The only possible obstacle he could see to such a program would lie in whether it would mean unconstitutional class legislation, and was not inclined to think that even this objection would be found valid.

"A city ordinance already requires that persons handling milk in dairies must be free from communicable disease," he said. "The Health Department now would refuse a license to any hospital which did not require its nurses and other attendants to be free from disease."

Dr. Starkloff pointed out that the restrictions about milk-handling are very strict. Not only does an ordinance require medical examination of all milkers, but the Health Department rules regulating the sale of unpasteurized milk provide that a dairyman's license can be revoked if milk is handled by persons with communicable diseases.

Answers Anonymous Letter.
The commissioner was shown an anonymous letter on stationery of a waiter's organization in which the question was asked whether it would not be as reasonable to require medical examination of the butcher, the grocer and the baker as well as the waiter. He replied that while it would be desirable for these also to be free from disease, any contamination they might give to raw food would be destroyed in cooking, and the great danger was in handling food after it had been cooked.

The Government has required frequent medical examination of cooks and waiters at Panama, and a report declares that it has been of inestimable value in preventing danger from typhoid fever carriers and persons suffering from similar maladies. An eastern railroad has adopted the plan for its dining car service and the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain Railroads have had it in operation for seven years.

The Missouri Pacific reports that since the examinations were instituted by L. M. Hill, superintendent of the dining car service, 75 per cent of applicants for jobs as stewards, cooks and waiters have been rejected. At the beginning all dining car employees were sent to the railroad hospital for thorough examination.

Tests Unusually Rigid.
The tests are said to have been more rigid even than those required by the United States Army and by life insurance companies. It was found that many of the cooks, waiters and stewards were in advanced stages of tuberculosis, catarrh and various other communicable ailments. An overwhelming percentage of the entire force was discharged and the places were filled by men physically sound. All those accepted have to undergo re-examination every three months. If a man takes a few days off for any reason he is required to go to the Missouri-Pacific hospital for a supplementary test to determine whether he has contracted any ailment. If one of them shows any symptoms of being ill he must be examined forthwith. If he has an ailment he must quit work until he is well, and if it is likely to be permanent he is dropped from the service.

Dr. Starkloff was amazed when he was informed of the high percentage of Missouri-Pacific rejections. He said he thought they must be due to strict requirements of physical condition outside of the question of communicable disease.

"Of course, it must be admitted," he said, "that such jobs are attractive to men who, for one reason or another, are not fit for more severe forms of labor. I cannot explain this large percentage otherwise."

The Medical Society has appointed a committee to talk over the proposed legislation generally with the Commissioner of Public Welfare. In outline the plan is to require the proprietor of every public dining place to compel his helpers to present physicians' certificates of health, with frequent re-examinations.

NO TRACE OF KIDNAPED BOY

Chicago Police Report Lorenzo Valenti Cannot Be Found There.

No trace of Lorenzo Valenti, 5 years old, of 1911 North Seventh street, who was kidnaped Tuesday, has been found in Chicago, according to telegraphic information received today by the St. Louis police. Incoming trains were watched in Chicago without result. After the boy was seized, while on his way to an Italian parochial school, his father, Salvatore Valenti, a grocer at 1005 North Eleventh street, received a letter demanding "$500 or more." The letter said the boy was on the way to Chicago, and that if the ransom were not paid he would be killed. The same fate was threatened if the family should tell the police of the kidnaping. The police are looking for Salvatore Mani and of 703 Carr street, who was seen walking with the boy Tuesday afternoon, after the time when he should have reached school.

Woman Beats Son, 10, With Poker.
Mrs. Antonette Constanza, 35 years old, of 1015 North Twenty-second street, was sent to the city hospital for observation yesterday after she had beaten with a poker her 10-year-old son, Angelo. The boy's hands had been tied behind his back by his mother during the beating.

Families Flee Fire in Night Clothes.
Three families living on the second floor fled to the street in their night clothes at 3:15 a. m. today, when fire was discovered in George H. Haines' saloon and grocery at 622 San Francisco avenue. The interior of the saloon and grocery and the rooms above it were wrecked by flames.

TRANSYLVANIA DUE IN THE SUBMARINE ZONE TONIGHT

Line Officials Do Not Believe Capt. Black Will Alter Course to Liverpool.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The White Star liner Adriatic was scheduled to leave Liverpool yesterday, but no word was received at the office of the line here as to whether she had departed.

Word was received that the Holland-American liner Rotterdam had arrived safely at Rotterdam. The Transylvania, in the Cunard service, which left here last Friday, five hours after the news of the Lusitania disaster was received, is due in Liverpool Sunday morning and is expected to be in the war zone tonight. Some shipping men believe Capt. John Black will fool the German submarines by going to the north of Ireland and putting into Glasgow. The officials of the line believe he will hold to the course the Lusitania took.

JOS. L. GRISWOLD, OWNER OF LACLEDE HOTEL, DIES AT 72

Present Wife, Divorced Wife and His Daughter by First Marriage at Bedside.

Joseph L. Griswold, 72 years old, died at 10 a. m. today at the Laclede Hotel, Sixth and Chestnut streets, of which he was the sole owner.

His present wife, Laura Einstmann Griswold; his divorced wife, Emily Adae Griswold, and his daughter by his first marriage, Miss Nellie Griswold, had been near him throughout his illness, which became serious about two weeks ago. Uremic poisoning caused his death.

Griswold was a Mason and a Catholic. After having been a Mason for many years he joined the Catholic church at the time of his second marriage in 1900. He obtained a divorce from his first wife in 1894.

Since then the daughter had spent part of the time with her father and part with her mother, whose home is in Washington, D. C.

Griswold owned the ground, building and furniture of the Laclede Hotel. He also had other valuable downtown property and his wealth is estimated as being at least $1,000,000.

WAR SURGEONS AT OWN EXPENSE

Pennsylvania U. to Be Represented in Relief Work in France.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—Dr. J. William White, emeritus professor of surgery and trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, will head a group of physicians and four nurses who will depart for France June 12 to represent the university in the war relief work.

The Pennsylvania contingent will have charge of the work undertaken by American universities during June, July and August.

Most of the doctors will pay their own expenses and the remaining cost will be met with funds privately contributed.

WOMAN DRINKS ACID, RECOVERS

Jealousy Said to Have Caused Attempt to End Her Life.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, 25 years old, wife of Burton Hayes, drank carbolic acid this morning in her room in a boarding house at 3104 Madison street, where she and her husband resided. She was treated at the city dispensary and sent back home.

Clifford Tuttle, whose mother conducts the boarding house, told the police Mrs. Hayes was jealous of her husband.

First Policewoman in America Tells Just Why Women Are Needed to Help Men Keep the Peace

Experience of Mrs. Alice S. Wells in Los Angeles

By Marguerite Martyn.

WILL our new policewomen "take a gun," flourish a "billy," wear a uniform?

Will they walk a beat, ring in the patrol box and hustle offenders into the hoodlum wagon?

What police duties can a weak woman perform that everyone of Chief Young's finest hasn't already acquitted himself of nobly?

If it is only social or missionary work, why are they not commissioned by the juvenile court instead of the police department?

In case I want to become a policeman, what are the requirements, the qualifications, the salary?

Policewoman Answers.

ONE still hears such questions as these regarding this new and unfamiliar element of city life.

It seems to me they have been answered endlessly by social reformers and advocates of the system.

It is true, though, that while we have had many theorists, never until last week, when Mrs. Alice Stebbens Wells came to town, did St. Louis behold a real live policewoman, one qualified to speak with the authority of experience.

And, now, that it is only a matter of choice whether we do or do not have women on the police force in St. Louis—the legal way having been paved by an enactment of the last Legislature providing for policewomen in Missouri cities of more than 35,000 population, the final decision resting with the Police Board—it behooves us to let Mrs. Wells, from the standpoint of five years actual service on the police force of Los Angeles, set at rest our doubts, fears and uncertainties.

Mrs. Wells was the first policewoman in the United States. Indeed, it was she, who, laboring manfully, one might say, in those years before equal suffrage came to California, in her own words, "created the demand" for policewomen.

Has Seen the Idea Grow.

SHE has seen her idea grow and prosper until now some 30 cities have women on the force and the next problem may be creating the supply of policewomen.

Having gone to Chicago and having given an account in the Post-Dispatch of my observations of how the system works there, where they have 10 policewomen, and knowing better, I hadn't the face to propound the aforementioned question. But for the benefit of those to whom previous articles did not "get across," in the course of a chat I had with her, I think Mrs. Wells answered all possible queries fully and completely.

As to the qualifications of a policewoman, Mrs. Wells' own personality should be sufficient definition. And, I warn you, she does not fulfill any previous standards of measurement and specifications for police officers.

She is a little woman, under middle height, and weighs 124 pounds. She has a high, thin voice of birdlike quality, which melts readily into thrills of laughter.

She is a woman of deep religious convictions, having been a pastor's assistant in Brooklyn, and at one time herself a Congregational preacher.

She is allied with the white ribboners and many sociological societies, particularly the Society of Hygiene.

A Policewoman's Work.

BUT a policewoman's work is something besides social ministrations," said Mrs. Wells.

"The police department is the least understood of our government. It becomes most conspicuous during times of riot and disorder, and you are likely to overlook the fact that it is between disturbances its real work is done; that it is a great peace army; that, as a rule, the police officer works seven days a week, with no Sundays off, and that night work means day work also—mornings spent in court.

"The great big word in our modern dictionary is 'prevention,'" he continued. "The prevention of law-breaking, the apprehending of cases before they reach the police court stage—that is just as important a part of the peace guardian's work as is making arrests.

"It is in this prevention of crime that women officers are as valuable as men.

"Understand, I do not say women ever can take the place of men on the force. There are certain duties women cannot perform. I never attempt to take into custody an offender stronger physically than myself. I have recourse to the patrol box or deputize a citizen to help me when such occasion arises.

Her Chief Offenders.

"HOWEVER, my chief offenders are the owners of skating rinks, dance halls and saloons, and, where men have business interests they dare not desert, it is not often necessary to take them into custody.

"I wear the badge and have full power to make arrests but I never resort to force, never carry a weapon of any kind.

"Women do not do the same work as men. If they did there would be no use in having women. We do work that men cannot do or that men have failed to do.

"There is certain work, such as looking after the conditions under which women work in factories and office buildings, small, detail work men always have liked to speak of as 'women's work.' There is the duty of looking after delinquent girls.

"I know of cases where men officers have taken wayward girls home only to have the mothers, instead of thanking them, whirl upon them and threaten to ruin their reputations or have them dismissed for even speaking to their daughters. Of course, no fair-minded, self-respecting mother does that, but the self-respecting classes are not the ones the police have most to deal with.

"No man should be required or allowed to question girls' cases of felony. And it is here," said Mrs. Wells, with emphasis, "that the strategic position of the policewoman comes in.

Mother and Daughter.

"THE policewoman can form the connecting link between the mother at home and the daughter who goes daily to work in a world of which the mother may have no knowledge.

"Many times have I been asked by mothers to warn their daughters only to find the daughters far more involved than the mothers had ever suspected.

"Then there are the cases of troubled wives. How many separations we have intercepted before they got to the divorce court stage, I cannot begin to tell. Some of the wives had no specific grounds for divorce, but their domestic relations were in serious need of readjustment.

"I recall the case of a woman who came to me for advice about a husband who was a good enough man except that he had a violent temper. He would come home, start a row, grow violent, begin to throw things and break up the furniture.

Homely Lecture for Man.

"NOW, I confess, I had not a particle of right to go to that man's house and interfere with his domestic affairs. But I went one evening, anyway. Some little show of authority in a woman seemed to give him a new regard and respect for women. There was a suffrage rally going on which, somehow, I persuaded him he ought to attend. I thought he might, seeing how valuable women had become in councils of state and country, place a different value upon her at his own bedside.

"Then I gave him a homely lecture from the humane point of view—told him he should remember women were not made of iron, that, instead of using his great strength to abuse, he should use it to protect his wife. Afterward that wife told me a great change for the better had come into her home life.

"It is a very fine line of demarcation between private and civil rights," Mrs. Wells commented, "and often the city's official friends, which is about what my job resolves itself into, can overstep the line, can meddle a little and help in a domestic tangle before it becomes too serious.

Sympathetic Appeals Court.

"OFTEN all that is needed is this sympathetic court of appeals.

Of course, in such cases the less official the atmosphere the better. Women appeal to women officers where they never would appeal to men about wayward relatives who need a little warning.

"In such cases it is well not to appear in uniform. I have thought there should be separate officers away from the police station, where cases pertaining to women and children could be handled.

"At the same time, it is best for our

SPEEDER'S PLEA, MAYOR KEPT HIM TOO LONG, FAILS

Demonstrator Who Says He Sold
Car to Kiel Fined by Executive's Son-in-Law.

The unusual plea of Edward V. Benson of 1311 North Euclid avenue did not prevent him from being fined in Judge Hogan's court today on a charge of automobile speeding.

Benson is an automobile salesman. He was arrested at Jefferson avenue and Locust street last night. Policemen testified he was going 22 miles an hour.

"I had been demonstrating a machine to Mayor Kiel and had closed the deal with him," said Benson. "He felt so good about it that he took me to dinner at a downtown cafe and he kept me so late that I had to hurry to get home."

"You are fined $5," said Judge Hogan. The Judge is Mayor Kiel's son-in-law.

$3 FINES FOR 26 AUTO DRIVERS WITH IMPROPER LIGHTS

One Woman Who Fails to Appear to Answer Similar Charge Is Fined $10.

Twenty-six automobilists, arrested last night for not having the proper lights on their machines, were required to pay $3 and costs each in Judge Hogan's court today.

Charlotte Boeckler of 4421 Laclede avenue was fined $10 by default, as she failed to appear in court to answer a similar charge.

Policemen at intervals of 30 feet on Lindell boulevard and on Washington boulevard were on watch for the light law violators last night.

Acting Judge Hartmann, sitting in Judge Sanders' court, fined George Sussman of 1311 North Euclid avenue $3 for having his muffler cut-out at 34th street and Franklin avenue.

NEGROES REGISTERED IN WRONG WARD SO THEY COULDN'T VOTE

Negro Preacher in Kansas City, Kan., Says He Was Told It Was "Clerical Error."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 13.—Testimony that negroes were unable to vote at the recent municipal election in Kansas City, Kan., because certificates of registration were incorrectly made out, was offered yesterday by J. H. Franklin, a negro preacher, at the investigation ordered by Gov. Capper of Kansas. The investigation is being conducted by James L. Smalley, special attorney-general.

Franklin said negroes living in one precinct were registered from another, making it impossible for them to cast ballots on election day. He said that when he inquired of the Election Commissioner's office said it was a clerical error.

A Distinctive Compliment To a Business Integrity

In awarding to us the exclusive right to represent their factory in the St. Louis territory, the Mason & Hamlin Company pays a high tribute to the business integrity which has characterized our every transaction since 1879

Mason & Hamlin Pianos

Represent the Very Highest Achievement in the Piano Makers Art

In selecting their St. Louis representatives Mason & Hamlin demanded more than financial responsibility—they required an established reputation for that business morality which few piano houses have had the courage and the character to acquire.

It is therefore of distinct significance to the piano buying public to know the elements entering into their St. Louis selection.

A cordial invitation is extended to you to come and see and hear this magnificent instrument that has reached the topmost pinnacle of piano perfection—then you will know why we consider its acquisition a business compliment.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The President's Philadelphia Speech.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
President Wilson's Philadelphia speech has not, in my opinion, thus far obtained the press the degree of recognition that such a patriotic, masterful, eloquent and solid pronouncement should have received. It is the "American Declaration of Peace and Unity"—the "Second Declaration of Independence." Future generations and historians will use it in connection with that of Washington in their school books and histories. It will do more in accomplishing peace, unity and harmony among ourselves, as well as the inhabitants of all countries now at war, than all the books, pamphlets and editorials yet written upon the subject, most of which should be forbidden distribution.

When the President of the United States now speaks the people of all the world bow and listen. If the President's address was translated into all the languages of the countries now at war and distributed among the soldiers thereof, the latter would cease singing the new anthem of the allies, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" and "Die Wacht Am Rhein," humbly beg each other's pardon, unlearned war and drink up the remainder of the "half and half," "pilsener," "Irish whiskey" and "French wines," quit their jobs and go home.

If the attention of the American public was properly called to the full meaning and advantages to be derived from this address, it would completely strangle our already dying, distressed and diseased commerce, immediately stimulating the same, open a new commercial era and awaken the dawn of more prosperous days for these great United States.

The American people in every city of the United States should join the President by holding mass meetings and adopting resolutions of approval of his attitude; and why not ask the people of our own great city to take the initiative by holding a monster mass meeting of its citizens at the Coliseum and adopt thereof suitable and proper resolutions which should be signed by representatives of every nation or country resident in our midst—and we have all of them—Oriental included. Then have this meeting send a committee of our citizens to Washington.

Such proceedings would, in my opinion, help all of our institutions, commercial and otherwise, and, incidentally, help St. Louis. Such action should immediately start the revival of our dormant industries and better the lot of our citizens who, unfortunately, have been too antagonistic to each other.

The German Attitude.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Allow me to congratulate you on your strong editorial in yesterday's paper. Your first utterances in view of the awful horror committed were weak and unsatisfactory.

There is no question here of laying the blame. The failure of the British to protect the vessel may have been due to the fact that they could not realize the depth of the German attitude. But all these are trivial matters compared to the awful fact that men live and exist in the hellish atrocity of having killed 1500 unoffending noncombatants. The inhumanity and brutality which conceived and carried out this atrocious murder will blot the name of Germany for all time. JOHN H. McCUMBER.

Woman Approves of Lusitania Slaughter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
After reading the comments in the Post-Dispatch of several New York papers especially, and some of the other larger city papers in general, would like to say I heartily agree with Capt. Ernst von Papen of the German Embassy, that Germany was justified in sinking the Lusitania and can find no argument in favor of England that can not easily be balanced by Germany, and I believe that if England doesn't like the way she is being treated, let her help herself and, also, let the watchful waiting continue.

A Deserted Wife's Request.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Could anybody please tell me the whereabouts of Mr. John J. Hackmann. He is supposed to give me $5.00 alimony for the support of my five children, and now he has gone. I have nothing but $2.00 this week to live on, with my five children; that is the wages of one. My one daughter is out of work and I would be very thankful if any one could give me information so I could make him pay. He left St. Louis April 15 in the morning. He used to be a driver for the Forster Baking Company, and lived with his parents, 2307 Geraldine avenue.

THE AMERICAN ATTITUDE.

The American people have reason to be thankful that Roosevelt, Wickersham and other froth-mouthers who are counseling rash and headlong acts on the part of the President, are not in positions of responsibility where their action or advice affects the country.

What we need above all is cool, calm judgment, coupled with firmness in standing for right. Let us first be sure that we are right at all points before we take any step. We should not act on the assumption that war is inevitable. No one can ever tell whether or not it is inevitable. We should assume that it is not inevitable and do all in our power consistent with honor and right to avert it.

On this point we may well bear in mind the counsel of the greatest of German statesmen, Bismarck, who remarked under similar circumstances, that it is impossible to "know the cards in the hand of Providence" and that a nation that seeks war on the ground that it is inevitable reminds him of "a man who commits suicide on account of the apprehension of death."

Let us take moral stock in the beginning of this controversy. We do not want war with Germany. We have not sought trouble with her or any other nation. We have tried to maintain strict neutrality and to be just to and friendly with all.

Germany, in her desperate sea warfare on her enemies, has injured us, a friendly nation. In violation of international law and agreements, and contrary to the usages of civilization, Germany has attacked American ships without warrant or warning and has drowned, among other non-combatants, more than 100 Americans, in a wanton, unprovoked attack on a British liner. Her action was not only illegal and unfriendly, but inhuman.

We are asking reparation and a guarantee that such barbarous, unfriendly and illegal acts shall not be repeated. We ask her to conform to law, obligation and humanity.

It is with profound regret—nay, sorrow—that we feel impelled by invaded rights and violated law to proceed to this issue with Germany. It is not of our making. We have been injured in heart as well as honor and interest. We feel a profound pity that the German people should be placed in such a position by their Government that they resort to such acts; that their Government, in order to attain its ends, should drive them to desperate measures which anger, humiliate and alienate their friends. We feel, much as may be said for German defense, that it is a sort of madness which has brought them to a point where they must strike friend as well as foe—where they ask their friends to submit to deep injury and to do wrong in order to retain their friendship.

President Wilson has taken the first necessary step to bring them to their senses and defend our rights. Germany must determine whether further steps are necessary. Her Government must decide whether we can continue our policy of friendly neutrality and preserve our honor, dignity and vital interests. The responsibility for the future rests with Germany. We profoundly hope that she will decide to do right.

A FABLED CRAFT.

The total lack of any signs of the presence of a battleship named Piffle in the fleet occasions grave suspicions that it is only a fabled craft and has never had a place among the vessels of the American navy.

STRAWBERRIES OR WAR.

Nowadays when a bawling cry breaks the dead calm of neighborhood you peer down the street uncertain whether the coming stentor is a war extra or a strawberry wagon.

"Straw-r-r" and "extraw-r-r" and "war-r-r" in the mouths of news-berry vendors are musically delightful, tantalizingly indistinguishable.

But the fact that a sweet singer on a load of luscious strawberries may precipitate mortal terror into peaceful environs and summon visions of carnage; likewise that a raucous herald of bloody horrors can tempt, deceive and keenly disappoint our palates are sorry consequences of consonance. Either eventuality is insupportably tragic—but which is the more so? We feel that something ought to be done about it—but what?

Shall we permit the war to ruin our strawberry season, mock our joys and turn sweet fruits of peace to gall and bitterness in our mouths—or shall we soft-pedal the innocent howling hyena who hucks Nature's succulent wares in the manner of a call to arms that brings women to tears and makes every molluscoid tremble?

A PAN-AMERICAN RHODES NEEDED.
Preston McGowan, our Minister to Venezuela, hit on a splendid idea when he planned to direct to the United States next year the Venezuelan youth who, but for the war, would now be arranging for their higher education in European institutions.

Not less admirable than the idea were his practical measures for giving it success. An inquiry was addressed to leading American colleges asking them to set apart scholarships especially for Venezuelan students. So far 76 have responded, each of which grants at least one scholarship and some a greater number. In all, provision has been made for the free education of 100 young men from this South American republic.

The equipment of these students on their return to their homes will be in sharp contrast with that of Venezuelans educated in Europe. They will have been subjected to that most potent of all influences in the national melting pot, the influence exerted by American universities.

They will have an understanding of American institutions and of the American people. Particularly will they have an understanding of the attitude of the United States toward Latin-America which misrepresentation has rendered it so difficult for Latin-America itself to comprehend.

Minister McGowan's happy conception reveals to us the opportunity that is open to some Cecil Rhodes of the United States. How great is the opportunity is partly indicated by the fact that in 60 years but 12 Venezuelans have studied in this country. These 100 scholarships should be made permanently available under a generous foundation for students from that country and a proportionate number should be made permanently available for students from all other Latin-American countries, according to their size and population.

The existence in each sister republic of a considerable body of leading citizens who had obtained their education in American institutions of higher learning could exert an influence hardly to be overestimated for the solution of the Pan-American problem.

NEW FREEDOM PROSPERITY.

Senator Reed's thesis before B. M. L. members, that the ills from which business has suffered in the past have been due to too little Government supervision, not too much, might have been indefinitely elaborated.

He showed how the reckless speculations of Morse and Heinze frightened the depositors of New York banks controlled by the two, and how the loss of confidence widened until the Knickerbocker Trust Co. was compelled by frantic withdrawals to close its doors and the panic of 1907 was on. The contributing causes of that panic were complex, but are typical of continuous and even more easily traced losses which business has suffered as a result of unrestrained rapacity and exploitation.

Who can compute the damage to legitimate railroading due to such financial crimes as those of the New Haven, the Frisco, the Pere Marquette, the Alton, the Rock Island? Industrial monopoly has fleeced the public of enormous sums in the destruction of values in independent plants and the unsound inflation of its own values.

The Senator's inventory of facts indicating that the reaction from the distrust caused by despotic private control of the nation's business is well under way was an impressive tribute to the new freedom. That the evils of supervision in the open by the whole people in accordance with well-established business principles could possibly develop the evils of control by Wall street sharks in secret is unthinkable.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S GREATEST BLUNDER.

In the mighty unofficial vote of confidence the country is giving the President, the principal individual in dissent is Col. Roosevelt.

The words in which he tells the country what he thinks of the Lusitania's destruction are his own private affair. Probably they do not differ much from the words which, at least in thought, clothe the opinion of the average American on the subject.

But when he impudently assumes in the following that his successor in office will be insufficient to a burden which it seems to the rest of the country he was raised providentially to the presidency to meet, and compares Mr. Wilson to Pontius Pilate, he offends in a degree justifying a national resentment next to that which German blundering has aroused.

For many months our Government has preserved between right and wrong a "neutrality" which would have excited the envious admiration of Pontius Pilate—the arch-typical neutral of all time. We have urged as a justification for failing to do our duty in Mexico that to do so would benefit "American dollars." Are we now to change faces and advance the supreme interest of "American dollars" as a justification for continuance in the refusal to do the duty imposed on us in connection with the world war?

The country will emerge from this crisis with an increased appreciation of the virtues of James Buchanan. He, too, had grievously tried the patience of the nation.

But he did not attack the Lincoln administration on the qualities for which it was and is most admired, its sense of responsibility to history and to the people and its acceptance of reason, not passion, as a guide.

He did not, at the very moment when Mr. Lincoln was preparing to vindicate splendidly the national sovereignty, insult him with odious comparisons and attempt to weaken the patriotic unity of the country.

DERNBURG OUTSTAYS HIS WELCOME.

If Dr. Bernard Dernburg is getting on the nerves of even the most patient administration that has sat at Washington since Lincoln's time, discretion ought to admonish him to make a quick and voluntary departure before our unusually comprehensive deportation laws are invoked.

He is one of those who have from the first deliberately set out to mislead German-American sentiment in this country. There has been just enough plausibility in his statements to make them credible to those willing to think the best of the German attitude and the worst of the American attitude, and just enough mystery about his mission in this country to invest what he said with some weight in authority.

Where he can go to when he leaves the asylum of this country is, of course, a problem. If he crosses to Canada he will be arrested. If he tries to return to Germany via the Mediterranean route or via most of the North Sea routes he risks capture by the allies unless he can show credentials establishing his diplomatic character.

But his gross abuse of national hospitality leaves little concern as to where he goes, if he only gets out. Present as a tolerated guest in a house of mourning, he mocked at the cause of our sorrow. While grief over the death of our representative men, our accomplished women and our helpless children lost on the Lusitania was fresh he glorified the act by which they were destroyed. He threatened other tragic blows. He insisted that conditions under which Americans might travel in safety on the high seas would be dictated by Germany. He declared that the American flag and American registry would afford no protection. "Anybody can commit suicide," he said flippantly.

Here's your hat, doctor!

The Japanese appear to feel toward China about the way Germany feels toward the rest of the earth.

"BUT WHY DID YOU KILL US?"

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

MR. ANTWERP ON KILLING NONCOMBATANTS.

"I was only a question of time until the United States would take a position against killing noncombatants in war," Mr. Antwerp said. "It has been assumed by some of the participants that the present war is more vital or in some way different from other wars, but that is not so. It is just war, and except for the greater expedition with which men are killed, it is like all war since the beginning of time. Like all war, too, it is subject to the usual rules and regulations of civilized warfare, and no matter what anyone thinks or what anyone is doing or has done, those rules are going to be enforced by what is more powerful than the armies of all allied nations—world sentiment. In the excitement of the first six months of the present war a good many rules of civilized warfare were violated without anything being done about it, but now the war has settled down, these things are being threshed out, and in the end civilized warfare will prevail. It has to be so. If it were not so, the world would be no better today than it was in the beginning, and none of us cares to say that is true. We are not so absurd."

"What we shall learn before we are done with this matter is that if submarines cannot take noncombatants from merchant ships before sending those ships to the bottom, it is not the rules of civilized warfare which prove impracticable under modern conditions, but the submarine which proves impracticable under the rules of civilized warfare. The position of Germany has been untenable. It will prove to be so. If she continues in her course she will only do what everyone else who has persistently violated the rules of civilized warfare has done—bring down the iron hand of the world. There has never been any consent in the rules of civilized warfare to the destruction of noncombatants, and there never will be any. If submarines cannot take the crews and passengers from merchant ships, they are not at liberty to destroy those ships. That is final. It will never be anything else. If we went to war on that score, we would only do what we have done before. We have fought for common humanity in our own Civil War and in the war with Spain. We can fight for it again. It is something to fight for. It does not matter what technicalities seem to justify such crimes as the sinking of the Lusitania. The same pleas in extenuation might have been offered for the slave owners and 'Butcher' Weyler. It is not to be. We won't have it, and the world won't have it. When it involves the destruction of our own people, something has to be done about it. Our courage is not measured by the size of our army and navy. They are no more than the standards of our disposition to peace."

OUR KINDRED DEAD.

THEIR eyes had gazed on ocean's seething wave
Bathed in the flames of sunset's golden fire—
Their hearts had smiled, unknown, upon that grave
Now gleaming like some fateful liquid pyre!
Their brows, by foam-kissed southern winds caressed,
Or turned with longing toward their native shore,
While fancy wrought sweet scenes within the breast
That to their vision shall arise no more!

Within the crystal chambers of the deep,
Where silence through the coral ages rolls—
Among the mirrored stars soft is their sleep,
And 'mid the stellar heights, their living souls
Have learned the cosmic secrets of those mysteries
That lead the myriad suns and rule the soundless seas.

MILLIE.—Chapped face: Melt lump of white wax as big as half an egg in two ounces oil of almonds, and to this add tablespoon white vasoline. This will make creamy mixture which can be used in quantity upon the face. It can never injure. The cream will be soft and delicate. Scent with a drop of rose.

PARTICULAR.—White spots on nails may yield to a paste made of equal parts turpentine and myrrh melted and mixed together. Put on at night and in morning cleanse by rubbing with olive oil. To have nails right, keep bowels open and have right food and exercise. Never overeat.

PAINT.—Softened old paint brush by boiling it in vinegar. If very full of paint, change vinegar and boil again. (When through with paint brush, work it out on a board until it is as free from paint as you can get it, then put away to dry. To soften for use again, immerse in boiled oil to the top of the bristles, heat it and work the brush in the hot oil till soft.)

GUARANTOR.—See Justice of Peace; you can sue for your past as guarantor. After obtaining judgment, file transcript in Circuit Clerk's office without delay. See fine as to when they expect their account squared, after which you can get busy. The judgment will stand good for 10 years and may be renewed for like term of years if done before same is outlawed. Garnishing wages does not result in much good (if any) in most cases.

ANXIOUS.—If the title to the realty is in the name of your father and grandfather, having survived him, if he only held the title she can claim her dower (life estate of one-third) in your case, and if the realty was homesteaded, she can claim it as such for life or until her remarriage, and his children would also have same right of occupancy of a homestead until attaining 21 years of age and subject to this children hold as remaindermen.

That Easter Prediction.

From the Albany Journal.
From Gaston Netter, well known in New York, but at present an adjutant in the military railway service of the French army, a New York acquaintance has received a letter in which Mr. Netter says: "I expect the war will be over around Easter, and I shall at once return to New York."

As the writer did not state reasons for his belief, it must unfortunately now be regarded as having its foundation in optimism that is turned had its origin in hope and wishes.

A Happy Involvement

A story in which the absence of Ralph made the heart of Mary grow fonder—but for another fellow.

By Harold Carter.

AND so—I am going away, Juanita. The girl looked at him in a dim, uncomprehending way. During the six months he had spent in New Mexico, at the hotel where she assisted her father, Ralph Brunton had come to mean everything to her.

Her indolent father, having amassed a comfortable fortune as the landlord of the most prosperous hotel along the coast route, had had the means to educate his daughter at the convent at Santa Fe. Juanita had all the Spanish charm and grace; now, with the education and refinement got from the good sisters, she could have picked her choice of the wealthy suitors for her hand.

But Ralph Brunton seemed different from the rough ranchers and prospectors who stayed at the hotel, tried to flirt with her and went away. He had never attempted any liberties with her. In his presence, under his respect, her high spirits were subdued to a timid, wistful endeavor to win his regard.

And she, too, had come to mean everything to him, though he dared not admit it to himself. Because—

"I know why you are going," said Juanita. "There is some girl in the East, isn't there, Ralph?"

He admitted it. He had not told her, but she had always guessed the reason why he had never made love to her until three nights before. Then the realization of the impending separation had unstrung him. Perhaps it was also the influence of the peaceful night scene, the crisp air, the sparkling stars, the wind among the cactus. He had turned to her and suddenly she was in his arms and their lips together.

Ralph Returns East.

AND the two days that followed were heaven for both of them. But it was different from heaven, because it ended.

"I am going away, dear," said Ralph. She was too proud to try to detain him. "But, remember," she said, half crying, half jestingly. "The Miner's Rest is always open to wayfarers."

A pressure of the hand, and he was gone toward the coach stables. Afterward Juanita saw him riding away in a cloud of dust. She put her head down on her arms and cried.

A year before Ralph had been sent West with lung trouble. He had been engaged to Mary Leeson, his father and hers were partners in a number of mining claims. Both men were millionaires. It was a natural thing that Ralph, fresh from college, should fall in love with Mary.

He had gone the pace, too, in his last year. A cold, neglected, had spread to his lungs; the upshot was that he was given the alternative between death and New Mexico. He had made the sensible choice. He went with regret, because he was in love with Mary, and he dreaded the rival who flocked about the wealthy heiress.

"Mary me and come with me," he had urged.

Mary declined. Cold-hearted, she was not going to bury herself in New Mexico with a man who might not live out the year. But she promised to be true to him.

And her letters, gay and full of stories of the home life, had made him incredibly homesick—until he met Juanita.

Ralph Calls on Mary.

NOW, riding homeward, he knew that Mary was only the pale shadow of his love; that Juanita had his heart and always would have it. He was going home because as a man of honor there was no other course. And he was going home cured. He had not heard from his fiancée for several weeks, and Ralph had dared to hope what he had once feared—that she, too, had learned that her heart lay in another's keeping.

A week later he stepped off the platform of the Grand Central Station in New York. As he rode in a taxicab toward the home of his fiancée, the solution of his problem came to him at last. Why should he make two lives unhappy if—Mary did not care for him? He would be as frank with her as she had always been with him.

He descended at the door. When he rang, the butler stared at him in amazement; the man remembered him, and had thought he would never return.

"I'll tell Mrs. Leeson, sir," he stammered.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulled coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use. One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

"Not Mrs. Leeson, but Miss Mary," explained Ralph. The butler did not seem to hear him. Ralph walked into the parlor and sat down. His heart was beating fast, and there was an undefinable sense of change. Ralph thought the butler had seemed less courteous than formerly. The furniture was covered, the room had not been dusted for some time. Ralph wondered—he was conscious of something which added to the pain of the approaching interview. When it was all over he must hurry home to his folks in Albany, stay awhile, tell them of Juanita. . . .

Mary stood before him. She had come in so quietly that Ralph had not heard her. There was a strange look in her eyes. She shrank away from him, staring hard.

"I happened to be home," Ralph heard her say.

"But Mary—Mary?"

"You have not heard?"

"Heard what?"

"Sit down," she answered calmly. "I see you do not know. I am a poor woman, Ralph. My father was involved in the crash of the banks last month. I couldn't write—I didn't know what you would think."

When Mary Explains.

THE young man's heart sank. His hopes ebbed, vanished. He seemed plunged into an abyss from which there was no escape. He understood the coldness of her greeting now. She was prepared to release him. She thought he would not want to marry her when her father was a bankrupt. And that was what made his plans impossible. How could he ask her to release him now? The face of Juanita shone upon the background of his spiritual vision.

"Mary, it doesn't make any difference," he heard himself saying.

She was staring at him. "Any difference?" she echoed.

"I mean—did you suppose that I would not want to marry you because you are poor?"

She was still staring at him. She rose and put her hands upon his shoulders. "Ralph, you—you have met another girl you care for, haven't you?" she asked, frankly.

Why, the light of understanding in her eyes was amazingly sweet. Shamefacedly he nodded.

"Ralph, I was married last week," she whispered. "I know it was wicked. Ralph. But I—I loved him and I felt that you didn't love me and were too honest to tell me so. You said you loved me and I was different. And I knew that you were not suited together. And as soon as—as father recovers from the blow we are going somewhere upon our honeymoon."

Ralph caught her by the hands. "Mary!" he cried. "You are the wisest woman in the world, and the second dearest. And do you know where your honeymoon will be spent? In New Mexico, at 'The Miner's Rest.' It is always open to wayfarers."

Some New Recipes

The Carlton Frozen Peaches.—Remove the stones from 1 quart of fine, ripe peaches, taking care to save any of the juice which comes from them. Crack the stones, take out the kernels and tie them loosely in a piece of muslin. Put a pint of cold water in a saucepan with 1½ pounds of loaf sugar; bring it gradually to a boiling point, and let it boil rapidly for 10 minutes. Pour the syrup into basin containing the peaches. Crush the kernels up inside the bag, lay in with the peaches and cover the basin with a cloth. When the syrup is quite cold add the strained juice of a lemon and a wineglassful of brandy, if desired. After removing the kernels freeze the mixture. This should be served in tall crystal glasses set on a dainty plate.

Cocoanut Charlotte.—A delicious dessert is this. Beat the whites of 3 eggs, a pinch of salt and ¼ cup of pulverized sugar. Scald 1 quart of cream in a double boiler, add to it the beaten and sweetened whites and the milk from 1 cocoanut, with 6 drops of rose extract. Freeze. Line charlotte russe cases, which are sold at all flavor stores, with white sponge cake. Fill in the center with the frozen mixture, scatter grated cocoanut over the whole and stick a maraschino cherry on the top for a garnish.

Maple Sugar Biscuits.—One quart pastry flour, with 1 heaping teaspoonful soda and 2 heaping teaspoonfuls cream tartar added, and sifted twice; 1 tablespoonful lard, well rubbed in; 1 teaspoonful salt; moisten with milk to make a soft dough. Roll out on board, quite thin, add 1 teaspoonful maple sugar to round, and cover with another round. Bake in very hot oven. These are delicious eaten warm with butter or fruit.

Sweetbread and Cucumber Salad.—Soak a pair of sweetbreads for 1 hour in cold, salted water; then drop into boiling salted water; add a teaspoonful of vinegar and boil them for 25 minutes; drop them again into cold water to harden; when cold remove the membrane and cut them into small pieces; peel and slice 2 or 3 cucumbers into very thin slices, and mix them with the sweetbreads; just before serving mix with mayonnaise dressing and garnish with white celery tips and olives; half a pint of mushrooms and celery added are quite an improvement.

Jaunty Little Hats for Pretty Little Maids That Can Be Made at Home by Mother or Sister

Models Must Not Be Too Dignified, but Simple and Sweet Just Like Little Maids of Three Should Look—With a Trifle of Patience They Can Be Fashioned With Various Effects.

WHEN 3 years old a little maid will not tolerate undue dignity, but jauntyness is appreciated. Many times the opportunity for accomplishing this effect is in the choice of her hat. And if economy as well as becomingness is to complete the three essentials, a mother or big sister will prefer to make the little hat at home.

As the models are of necessity simple ones, the sewing on of the braid is not much of a task, and many times a straw will quite "make" the hat.

The Sandman's House

The story of how Little Hans, the Dutch boy, finds a way to put his poor, sick mother to sleep.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

VERY small boy, with a large, hard Dutch name, which as you and could not possibly pronounce it, we will call Hans, lived in a quaint old Dutch village. For any boy who wears his hair "girl fashion" and such bloomy pants, with room for miles of pockets, and dainty wooden shoes, should be called Hans, and Hans he shall be.

His mother had to work very hard all day in the tulip beds, while Hans and their little donkey peddled milk in the city. So when night came she was very tired and hardly had strength enough to take off her 17 petticoats. One night when Hans returned, fed the donkey and polished the big, shiny milk cans, he found his mother quite sick. For a whole week, night and day, she could not close her eyes to sleep. The fussy old Dutch doctor came and said she must sleep, but his biggest pill and his very nastiest medicine failed to help.

It was a very worried little boy who floated down the canal with a boatload of tulip blooms, for his mother was the very best one in the world, as mothers have a way of being, and there seemed to be nothing he could do to help. "I could only see the Sandman," thought Hans, "perhaps he would give me sand enough to put her to sleep."

WHEN he started back from the city his thoughts were anywhere but in the direction of the boat. Suddenly he looked up and the canal seemed strange. Not a house nor mill was in sight, and far ahead was a dim gray shore line. Hans could not imagine where he was, so he rowed very hard and soon reached the land.

A little low gray house stood just back from the high-line line, and to this the bewildered Hans made his way. On the stone fence two birds chirped sleepily, the flowers all nodded, and a great dog slumbering on the step did not stir at Hans' approach. Even the spels of the jolly face of the knocker were

Bits From Everywhere

France has a population of about 40,000,000.

In the United States there are 6,361,502 farms, with a total acreage of 578,708,325.

Men drilling an artesian well in Argentina found rich deposits of copper at a depth of 100 feet.

More than 200,000 acres of land are devoted to coconuts growing in the Federated Malay states.

The Volga, 2400 miles long, has only a four-inch drop to the mile, which is characteristic of most Russian rivers.

The door swung open to Hans' timid knock, and in the light from within stood a quaint, frail, little figure. Very kind eyes looked out from under his shaggy white brows and a gentle voice said: "Who are you that come, oh, so open-eyed into this kingdom of sleep?"

"Just Hans, sir."

Smiling, the old man drew him into the wide hall hung with a thousand soft-lit lamps.

"Are you the Sandman?" asked Hans.

"Yes, little man," he replied.

WHEN Hans told him all about his mother and begged that he send her some dream sand so that she might sleep, and the Sandman looked into Hans' heart, and seeing what a good, thoughtful little chap he was, promised to do as he wished. Then he showed Hans all the wonderful things behind the thousand doors of the hall. How dreams are made, and even his own little boys and girls fast asleep, as they should be, for it was quite late. Then the Sandman drew his long gray sleeve over Hans' bright golden head.

A funny little long-legged sunbeam tickled Hans' nose and he sat straight up, and there he was in his own bed, floating close to the bank right by his house. "Oh," cried he, "how worried mother will be!" and he ran to the house. But the Sandman was true to his promise and Hans found her fast asleep.

My Wife's Husband

By Dale Drummond.

Chapter XXXI.

THE day Jane arrived I was at the station to meet her. While I couldn't honestly say I had missed her particularly—I was too busy—I was glad to see her and the boy. Dorothy was with them, looking well, although she was with crutches, and she said she was feeling nicely.

We all went up to the hotel to lunch, then I put Dorothy and John on the train again. He was to stay with Jane's mother until we were quite settled. Martha went over to the house at once. The furniture would be unloaded that afternoon, so she could make herself perfectly comfortable.

As we went into the hotel dining room I heard Jane give a little gasp of surprise, and, turning in the direction she was looking, I saw Lucius Hemming and his wife, both in evening dress, sitting at one of the tables.

"Did you know the Hemmings were here?" I asked, trying to hide my feelings as best I could, but succeeding badly.

"No, not in the hotel; I knew they were in Chicago."

"Why didn't you tell me so before we came down? I can't understand this air of secrecy where Lucius Hemming is concerned."

"In the first place I didn't think of it, and then, also, I didn't suppose you would be interested. Of course I had no idea we would meet here."

"There's more to this man than I know of!" I stormed, still in an undertone. "Did he know you were coming, and did he come on the same train with you?"

"Do have a little common sense, George!" Jane returned coldly, the proud, displaced look I knew so well on her face. "Mr. Hemming happens to be having dinner with his wife. I came to Chicago with my sister, my baby and a servant. No, he was not on the same train; they came yesterday. I believe."

"You know so much about it, perhaps you also know how long they are going to stay?"

"Why, they are going to live here, I believe."

"LIVE in Chicago! Since when?"

"Oh, I believe they decided to do so some time ago. Louisa told me Mr. Hemming had a chance to sell his business advantageously. And as he had been anxious for years to live in Chicago he took the opportunity."

"Your coming has nothing to do with it, I suppose! Strange their chance should come just at this time, don't you think?"

"Oh, I don't know anything about it. It's none of my business anyway. But I do think you are being as disagreeable as you know how. Suppose we drop the Hemmings. They seem to be enjoying themselves, if I am not!" And Jane turned to tell the waiter what she wanted for dessert just as Lucius Hemming came up to our table.

"This is indeed a surprise, Mrs. Buterworth," he said. "When did you arrive?"

"Just this morning," Jane replied.

"I hear you have been very successful caring for my brother's wife," turning to me, then seeing my bewilderment. "My half-brother's wife, I should have said, Mrs. Prentice."

That accounted for the likeness that had impressed me when I first saw Mr. Prentice. In spite of myself I seemed bound to be entangled with the Hemmings.

Teach Her to Cook!

By Sophie Irene Loch

HAPPINESS and health in any community depend more on good housewifery than on any other one thing. Yet how little the average American girl knows of it! Certainly, she has been to school. She is a thorough woman and anxious to make her husband happy. And the chances are she doesn't even know how to peel potatoes or broil a steak."

This is the recent statement of Marion Harland, who for 46 years has been teaching women how to live. There is much wisdom in her words. There are more divorces caused from indigestion than can possibly be estimated. The dangerous doctrine that some girls are "not fitted" for cooking or that somebody else should do it, seems to be preached on all sides.

A little bit of grandmother's philosophy that all girls should know cooking would not go amiss in the twentieth century life with all its propaganda. The needs of the physical life in relation to food are more important in this age of strong mental activities than they ever were in any other period. Proper food properly cooked builds strong bodies and, consequently, strong brains. Every girl should know how to cook. Every mother should see that her daughter is taught how to cook.

Even though circumstances are such that she may not need to do it, yet there may come a time when such knowledge is most useful. It should be a part of every girl's education, because it is an element of economics. Young women who delude themselves with the idea that they are too artistic for so-called "domestic drudgery" are usually the very girls who become the drudges, for they make the work drudgery.

Art is only the beautiful way of doing things and the culinary art is no exception. It is the attitude you bring toward things, no matter how lowly they are, that makes them beautiful. You have only to look into the history of great women and it was always the woman of achievement in the world of things artistic that could go into the kitchen and bring art there also.

The same brain that can analyze a subject and read a paper before a woman's club can use the same brain with its analytic power in measuring ingredients and making them palatable. No matter how many advanced ideas become realities the home unit needs will be retained. As long as there is a home woman, there must be a great part of it. Cooking is one of its chief assets.

The women who must forever be at the mercy of servants because she does not know is the one who very often causes the waste and extravagance in their home, leading to its dissolution. On the other hand, the woman who does understand the why and the wherefore and how things should be done may be the real mistress of any situation and direct her household to its best advantage and to consequent real happiness.

When cooking is treated as one of the lesser needs of the home, that home is bound to suffer in some way.

A War-Flag "Merger"

THE Union Jack, the banner under which Englishmen, Scotchmen, Irishmen, Welshmen, Canadians, Australians, East Indians and men from other parts of the great empire on which the sun never sets are now fighting on the bloody fields of France, was designed 307 years ago, in 1606. The original flag of England, the banner of St. George, white with a red cross, was incorporated with the banner of Scotland, which was blue with a white diagonal cross. This combination obtained the name of "Union Jack," in allusion to the union between England and Scotland, and to the name of the monarch who brought about the consolidation of the crowns. This was James I of England and VI of Scotland, the word "Jack" being a corruption of Jacobus, the Latin word for James. The original arrangement of the Union Jack continued until 1801, when, following the union with Ireland, the banner of St. Patrick, white with a diagonal red cross, was amalgamated with it. The red Maltese cross of St. Patrick was placed over the white cross of St. Andrew, so that a thin white line on either side is all that remains of the Scottish cross.

The many nationalities comprising the empire of Franz Josef fight under a common flag of red and white, the colors of the Hapsburg dynasty. There are red stripes at the top and bottom of the banner, and on the central white stripe appears the Austrian coat of arms. The German, Austrian and Russian banners, like the English, represent a slow growth through many centuries and have carried many distinguishing emblems in battle, but it was not until the sixteenth century that the flag acquired its present form in Spain. Before that it was just a small square of cloth carried on a lance. The modern flag is said to have been introduced in Spain by the Saracens.

There are about 12,000 cremations each year in the United States. The first crematory was established in 1876, and during the eight succeeding years only 28 human bodies were cremated.

The land at the head of Wall street, on which Trinity Church and cemetery stand, comprises a plot 20 feet long by 27 feet broad, valued at $17,000,000.

In 1860 New York City will have 15,000,000 people and the United States 30,000,000, 75 per cent of whom will live in cities and towns.

For Acid Stomachs Use Magnesia

The almost universal use of magnesia by physicians and specialists in the treatment of stomach troubles is due to the fact that it stops food fermentation and neutralizes the acid—the direct cause of nearly all stomach troubles. Of the many forms of magnesia, such as oxides, citrates, carbonates, sulphates, etc., the most suitable and efficient, and the one prescribed by leading specialists is Standard Magnesia, a teaspoonful of which in a little warm water immediately after eating will instantly neutralize the acid, stop fermentation, and thus ensure normal digestion. Care should be taken to get Standard Magnesia, as its action is infinitely more effective. It is also, by its plan, usually stocked by druggists in convenient compressed tablets as well as in the ordinary powder form. Standard Magnesia is a mild laxative and does not cause the stomach to become dependent on it. It is a safe and reliable remedy for all acid stomach troubles, and can be used without the slightest risk of artificial dietetics.—ADV.

Women Must Guard Against Constipation

Women are so constituted as to be peculiarly susceptible to constipation, and their general health depends in large measure on careful regulation and correction of this tendency. Their delicate organisms rebel at the violence of cathartic and purgative remedies, which while they may afford temporary relief, shock the system and seriously disturb the functional organs. A mild laxative is far preferable and, if properly compounded, much more effective.

The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Pepsin is ideal for women's use. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello Ill.

HORSE ARRESTED FOR BEING DRUNK AND DISORDERLY

Animal Staggered on East St. Louis Streets and Broke Into Saloon.

The first horse to be "arrested" in East St. Louis as "drunk and disorderly," is locked up in a stable behind the police station, "sleeping it off."

The horse was taken into custody at 6 p. m. yesterday, after it had passed through the swinging doors of Frank Wyant's saloon, Main street and Broadway, removing one of the doors during the process. Previous to this the horse had sauntered leisurely down Collinsville avenue, staggering considerably, and interfering with traffic.

After being locked up the horse was examined. A physician said the animal had been "doped," and that the drug was responsible for its conduct. A certain class of horse traders "dope" horses by putting a drug on their tongues, which causes them to "show off" for the benefit of a prospective buyer.

BARBER ARRESTED AFTER A FIRE

Newspapers Saturated With Gasoline
Found in Recently Insured Shop.

Vincent Difore, a barber, 24 years old, was arrested at his home, 105 North Eleventh street, this morning, after a fire had destroyed the contents of his barber shop at 1205 North Ninth street about 2 a. m.

Firemen found bundles of newspapers saturated with gasoline and partly burned and two bowls containing oil-soaked towels in the place. Difore had his fixtures insured for $300 about a month ago. The damage by fire amounted to about $200. The prisoner said he had nothing to do with placing the oil-soaked material in his shop.

PHYSICIAN-CONVICT CARES FOR A SMALLPOX PATIENT

Dr. Haldane Cleminson, Carling for Prisoner on Honor Farm Near Joliet.

JOLIET, Ill., May 12.—Dr. Haldane Cleminson, serving a life term in the State prison for the murder of his wife, has voluntarily gone into isolation in a tent on the prison Honor Farm near here with a convict who was found to have smallpox. When the smallpox patient was discovered steps were taken to remove him from the rest of the prisoners and the young doctor declared his willingness to take care of the patient and cure him.

Dr. Cleminson, who was imprisoned four years ago, made a fight for his freedom after he was convicted by offering evidence to prove he was not at home the night his wife was killed. Some of his friends made a statement declaring he was out driving with another woman at the time and that he remained silent concerning this at the trial to shield the other woman. This woman is said to have appeared before the Parole Board and made affidavit to this effect.

The board, however, refused a parole. Dr. Cleminson then wrote to his parents declaring that if a parole were obtained he would spend the rest of his life in a leper colony. His relatives tried to dissuade him but he was firm and since then no efforts have been made to obtain his release.

DETROIT'S STREET CAR SYSTEM TIED UP BY A STRIKE

Discharge of Motorman and Other Grievances Cause Employees to Declare Walkout.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—Not a city street car was being operated in Detroit at 7 a. m. today as the result of a strike called by Detroit United Railway conductors and motormen because of the company's refusal to reinstate a motorman who had been discharged for alleged careless handling of his car. The strike vote was taken at a meeting of more than 1500 carmen in the early morning hours and was practically unanimous.

Thousands of factory employees and downtown workmen who had depended on the street cars were from one to three hours late in reporting at their work. No disorder was in evidence.

Street railway officials today announced that an attempt would soon be made to operate cars whether the strikers returned to work or not.

They declared, however, the men had violated their working agreement with the company in not submitting their case for arbitration. The men, on the other hand, declared that the company had repeatedly violated its side of the agreement, and while the case of the discharged motorman led directly to the strike, other factors, including unsatisfactory working conditions, induced them to walk out.

As soon as Mayor Marx reached his office he summoned both the strikers and their employers for a conference. He first conferred privately with the union men, then in private with the railroad officials and afterward a joint meeting was held.

SHERIFF ARRESTS SPEEDER
County Officer Charges Chauffeur with 40-Mile Clip.

William Reed, chauffeur for H. B. Graham of Hampton Park, St. Louis County, secretary of the Graham Paper Co., was arrested yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Bode of St. Louis County on a charge of speeding. Reed, driving Graham's car, passed the Sheriff's car on the Clayton road going, as the Sheriff thought, about 40 miles an hour. Bode chased him and made the arrest.

SKELETON OF SLAIN WOMAN IS FOUND BURIED IN WOODS

Hatchet Picked Up Near Shallow Grave at Rochelle Park, N. J.—Skull Crushed.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 12.—Passing through Johnson's Woods, Rochelle Park, N. J., Samuel Vreeland of Rochelle Park saw a woman's patent leather pump sticking from the earth. On investigation he found the pump attached to the foot of a skeleton and informed the authorities.

Detectives W. V. A. Bluevelt and John W. Courtier of Hasckensack, under instructions from Chief of Police Dunn and Prosecutor Thomas J. Rucklin, made discoveries which convinced them, their chief and the prosecutor, that a woman had been lured to the woods and murdered there or had been murdered at some distant point, carried to the woods and buried.

Body Buried Hastily.
The detectives found that the body had been buried hastily in a shallow grave too short for it. One of the pumps was missing, but was discovered a short distance away. Near it was a hatchet, to which strands of hair were held fast by what is believed to be dried blood.

County Physician Ogden found that the skull had been crushed in on the left side. The woman had been buried fully dressed except that her hat was missing.

Dr. Ogden said the woman had excellent teeth and an abundance of brown hair, which indicated that she was young. The pumps are about 3 or 4 in size. The woman wore a black skirt and waist, a thin undershirt, white cover, white petticoat and black silk stockings.

Evidently in Good Circumstances.
Judging from the clothes and the condition of the teeth, Dr. Ogden said, "it is my opinion that she was in good circumstances. She wore rubber heels on her pumps and the pumps had not much wear."

A piece of a man's shirt was found in the woods between the grave and the spot where the second pump and the hatchet were found. Dr. Ogden believes it was torn from the shirt worn by the murderer by the underbrush as he carried the body to the grave. Evidently the woman had been dead one or two years.

A careful search of the clothing and grave will be made today for articles which may lead to the identification of the woman.

GERMANS BRIDGE THE EUPHRATES

Building of Bagdad Railway Involved Tunneling Through Solid Rock.

ROTTERDAM, May 12.—A Constantinople telegram announces that the German engineers have completed the great bridge across the Euphrates, near the railway station of Dyerabul on the Bagdad Railway. The bridge is now open for traffic. It is understood that trains can now run through from Konia, the terminus of the Anatolian Railway, to the Euphrates.

Dyerabul is on the Euphrates, north-east of Aleppo, on the border of the Mesopotamian desert. The terminus of the railway has been for several years at Bulgru, in Asia Minor, and the German engineers who have been constructing this section of the line have had the tremendous task of piercing the Taurus Mountains with tunnels cut through the solid rock.

WILLIAM F. BROADHEAD DIES

He Was a Lawyer and the First Mayor of Clayton, Mo.

William F. Broadhead, 72 years old, a lawyer and the first Mayor of Clayton, died of acute indigestion last night at the home of Thomas McCluer, near O'Fallon, Mo., which he had reached only an hour before his death, intending to remain several days. Col. Broadhead complained that he did not feel well when he reached the McCluer home. His condition almost immediately became critical and a physician was summoned.

Col. Broadhead was born in Westville, St. Charles County. He is survived by a widow and four children, Overton Broadhead of Rolla, Mo.; Mrs. Sanford Avis of Webster Groves, Archibald Broadhead of Clayton and the Rev. James N. Broadhead of 2224 Highland avenue, pastor of Mount Auburn Methodist Church.

SCISSORS IN DEMAND IN VIENNA

They Are Needed to Cut Off the Coupons of Bread Tickets.

VIENNA, May 12.—Scissors are in great demand in Vienna, the coupon parts of the municipal bread tickets are not perforated, so they have to be cut off with scissors, which have consequently become indispensable for everybody.

As bread can be obtained in restaurants and cafes only in exchange for coupons, the waiters must be provided with scissors, and it is estimated that at least 10,000 pairs have been bought for them alone. The bakers must have them also, and many individuals carry their own scissors.

CHILD BITTEN BY A BULLDOG

Anna Denner, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mamie Denner of 2146 Florissant avenue, was severely bitten by a bulldog when she crawled within six feet of the animal's house in the backyard of her home last evening. The dog, which was owned by Clyde Johnson, who lives in the rear of the Denner home, was tied on a six-foot rope.

The child was bitten five times on the scalp and physicians advised that an examination be made by the City Veterinarian. The dog was shot to death by a patrolman.

GERMAN VESSELS SEARCHED

Customs Inspectors Visiting Ships in New York Port.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The 7 Customs Inspectors who visited the German vessels lying at dock in Hoboken yesterday continued their work today. After completing the search of vessels in Hoboken, it was said they would go to the German docks in Brooklyn and thereafter complete the search by visiting every German and Austrian ship in port.

There were several reports as to what the inspectors were searching for, one being that they were seeking to determine if any one of the German ships had explosives aboard.

ONLY GERMANS USE POISON FUMES SAYS POST-DISPATCH MAN

They Release Great Volumes of Gas Which Asphyxiates All in Its Path.

VICTIMS DIE IN AGONY

Chlorine Said to Be the Substance Used—Held to Violate All Rules of War.

By Henry N. Hall.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World, who returned recently from a tour of the western battlefield.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

Asphyxiating gases, now being used by Germany against the allies, add a fresh horror to the already countless horrors of modern warfare. It is the latest contribution of science to the art of wholesale slaughter, and shows how utterly merciless a character the death struggle in Flanders has assumed. Chlorine is said to be the substance used, and this is probably the method of its employment.

In the place of the long columns of ammunition wagons brought up to feed the guns, one or two big auto trucks rumble along to a chosen spot in the line. Methodically, the engineers unload heavy tubes of liquid gas, and when the wind is blowing steadily away from their own lines, they put on big smoke helmets, such as firemen use, and open the valves.

Suffocates All in Its Path.

A thick, yellow gas, two and a half times heavier than air, spreads its pungent and poisonous fumes over the countryside, and is wafted toward the allies' trenches, suffocating every living thing in its path.

The men who are overcome by the fumes die a most excruciatingly painful death. As the poison enters their lungs, they struggle and expire in an uncontrollable fit of coughing. Those who are not killed are rendered insensible, and the latest French reports indicate that, as the men lie in this defenseless condition, they are bayoneted by the onrushing Germans.

Violates Rules of War.

That this method of slaughter violates all accepted rules of civilized warfare is admitted, and at first the plea was made that the presence of poisonous gases was only incidental to the use of certain high explosive shells. This having been disproved by Sir John French's reports, Dr. Dernburg issued a statement on Monday, in which he said:

"Early in November of last year, long reports were published of an astounding French invention for the purpose of asphyxiating enemies by nauseating gases contained in the shells. All details were given, and a great deal was made of the probable effects on the foe, and the ending of the war in favor of the allies—in consequence of this invention—was predicted with a great deal of satisfaction."

The stories alluded to by Dr. Dernburg purported to describe the effect of French artillery fire which had overwhelmed the occupants of German trenches with death so sudden that they remained in lifeless postures with hardly any visible wounds, and this result was attributed to the use of asphyxiating gases.

Charles Against France Unfounded.

When I was at the front I made a careful inquiry into this matter, and satisfied myself that there was not one word of truth in the allegation that the French had used asphyxiating gases. There was a basis of truth in the stories, so far as the results of the fire and the condition in which the dead bodies were found, but the results were due entirely to the new shell which was being tried out in the famous French three-inch field gun, and not to the use of asphyxiating gases.

I obtained my information from artillery experts and from doctors who had performed autopsies on the bodies of the men killed by the new shell, the invention of which—as recently admitted in an official French communiqué—has virtually doubled the efficiency of the wonderful little cannon to which France owes her salvation as much perhaps as to any one thing.

This is what I learned: "When ordinary shrapnel bursts the 'chemisette' or outer casing is torn to fragments of varying sizes, which scatter with the shrapnel itself over an area that depends upon the force of the explosive contained in the shell. The new French shell is not shrapnel at all—it is a highly explosive shell, the 'chemisette' of which is thicker than the old type of shell, and constructed of a special kind of steel which does not break into fragments, but shatters into more than 2000 water-like pieces.

A doctor showed me a piece he had taken from the body of dead German. It was as thin as the thinnest kind of a safety razor blade, and must have acted in the air very much like a piece of slate, whirling round and round. He told me that the cut made in the soldier's uniform had been imperceptible, and the only trace of wound was a thin blue mark where the piece of steel had entered; but that once inside the body, it had cut the man's heart in two, causing instantaneous death and profuse internal hemorrhage.

done whenever picric acid forms the basis of a disruptive explosive, because picric acid, when left in contact with metals or oxides, forms very unstable and highly dangerous detonating salts.

Picric Acid Generally Used.

Picric acid is, however, even today the most generally used explosive as a bursting charge for shells. It is obtained by the action of strong nitric acid on phenic acid, a substance which is the same as carbolic acid found in that part of the heavy oil of coal tar, which distills between 320 and 374 degrees Fahrenheit. It was used as a yellow dye long before its explosive properties were discovered.

Mellinite, which was invented by Turpin, is picric acid mixed with collodion, and is one of the most powerful explosives. For years its existence and process of manufacture was one of the most closely guarded of French military secrets. Until the recent introduction of tolls it was used exclusively in the French army, and is still their standard explosive.

Lydite is not quite so powerful as mellinite. It is the English name for melted and solidified picric acid, or, more correctly, trinitrophenol, and is the purest form in which this explosive is used.

The gases liberated by the detonation of lyddite stain the skin yellow, and this made it impossible to suppress the fact that the British artillery had bombarded their own men at the battle of Neuve Chapelle. When the wounded began to arrive in England a large number were quite yellow, and evidently had been under the fire of their own guns.

"N. T. T." which is used by the Germans, is sometimes called trotyl. It behaves much like the picrates, except that it does not form salts with metals, and is a very safe explosive, with great bursting power. It requires, however, to be started by a powerful detonator to obtain its full effect.

Nitrates an Important War Factor.

The quantity and quality of "N. T. T." which Germany can manufacture, however, depends almost entirely upon her supply of nitrates, which she formerly obtained in vast quantities from Chile. It is believed that this source of supply has been effectively cut off, and that this may prove a very important factor in determining the duration of the war.

A special form of high explosive is used in the great Austrian howitzers, the "Black Marias," which demolished the forts at Namur and are now said to be in use at Ypres. The enormous volume of black smoke which follows on the explosion of the shells thrown by these great guns is caused by ammonal, which is a mixture of trinitrotoluene, ammonium nitrate, charcoal and aluminum.

When You Curl Your Hair Use Gloriel Wavolene

Gloriel Wavolene makes the curl or wave last a long time. It is a clear, invisible liquid, perfectly harmless to use and if applied to the hair before it is curled will produce a very natural, soft and fluffy appearance. But the beauty of its use is that you won't have to curl the hair nearly so often. Once every seven or ten days will be frequent enough to curl the hair.

Many beautiful society women, school girls and actresses use it regularly and wouldn't be without it at any cost. It aids in a hurried toilette so much that it is an almost indispensable article to keep on hand. Gloriel Wavolene is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction, and if you are not pleased after using, your dealer will refund the purchase price (50c).—ADVERTISEMENT.

Brag Coffee

Absolutely the Greatest Coffee Value Ever Offered

Our "BRAG BRAND" denotes perfection in quality. That is why we use it to single out this particular blend of the finest old plantation coffees from all others. BRAG COFFEE is perfection in flavor, aroma, and "cup quality"—a blend that it has taken us many years of the largest buying to bring to its present pinnacle of excellence. It is selected and scientifically roasted in our mammoth roaster—right in this store under the eye of the public by our expert—Mr. Robert Shelton. It is unsurpassed and unsurpassable in character and flavor. BRAG COFFEE is sold only in 1-lb. sealed packages, lined with parchment paper—the sweetest, best and most hygienic of containers keeping the coffee always in its "fresh-roasted" perfect condition and preventing all sweating, sogginess and deterioration, which so often occurs with the sealed tin. Ask for "BRAG COFFEE" and enjoy the most delicious cup of coffee you ever tasted. We keep the price at all times, per lb. package, down to.....

BANK OF ENGLAND

SHOULD BE GAUGED AT $36,600,000 GOLD

Record-Breaking Shipment of Yellow Metal Is Made From Continent.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Evening Post in its comprehensive financial review today says:

The market was entirely natural that uncertainty first as to the exact language of our Government's note to Germany, and secondly as to the Berlin Government's answer to it, should have restrained activity on the Stock Exchange today. On a small scale, that is, yesterday's Stock Exchange alternately backed and filled in its attitude towards prices, with the general trend downwards. The position of opinion, as to the outcome of this diplomatic imbroglio, undoubtedly existed in Wall Street as elsewhere.

The retreat of the German Foreign Office in the published declaration of yesterday, on responsibility for destruction of neutral vessels, in the German Government's terms, was a considerable step towards a settlement of the controversy. But it was also recognized, and was in fact foreseen, that the German Government's terms would be refused, and our people expected to content themselves with expropriations of the German Government.

"What would be the sequel, either to the one course of action or the other, the Stock Exchange has no better ability to predict than the general public. There has been for several days, however, a tendency to predict that the German Government's terms would be refused, and our people expected to content themselves with expropriations of the German Government.

The demand in the bank and trust list was limited and prices showed no wide changes from yesterday's call. The miscellaneous list also was quiet. Bonds were steady on the latter mentioned.

COTTON CLOSERS FIRM:

TRADE IS MODERATE

NEW YORK, May 13.—The cotton market was unsettled again during today's early trading, and after opening unchanged to 10 points lower, active months sold 8 to 10 points under last night's close. Liverpool was relatively steady and there was some buying here for Liverpool straddlers, as well as a little demand from houses with New Orleans connections, but there was no aggressive support and the market was nervous as a result of scattering liquidation on international politics during the middle of the afternoon, with prices holding steady until about 2 o'clock, when the old crop and about not unchanged to 5 points lower on new crop positions. The closing was steady.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCordell.

Mr. Jarr Has a Menu Bout With Mrs. Jarr and, as Usual, Loses.

"WHAT would you like for supper this evening?" asked Mrs. Jarr as Mr. Jarr was preparing to go off to business the other morning. Mr. Jarr had just had his breakfast, and if there was one subject he was not interested in at the time it was food.

"Oh, I don't care," he answered carelessly. "That's what you always say when I ask you," said Mrs. Jarr peevishly. "But when you come home you say, 'Oh, you've got beef stew again, hey?'"

"Oh, I don't care; anything," said Mr. Jarr indifferently. "But have some salad."

"Oh, I intended to have a salad. What kind of salad would you prefer—dandelion, romaine or lettuce?"

"Any will do. But if it's just as convenient, I think I would prefer to have dandelion salad. And if you want me to say what's to be for supper, we haven't had pork chops for some time."

"Don't you know that pork has gone up? It's nearly as dear as mutton now," said Mrs. Jarr.

"If you are considering economy, have codfish, salt codfish."

"Now, that isn't a nice way to talk," said Mrs. Jarr. "Pork is too dear and so pork chops are out of the question. How about lamb chops?"

"But lamb chops are dearer than pork chops, even if pork has been raised in price, aren't they?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Yes, they are," admitted Mrs. Jarr. "But one doesn't look at it that way. When you've never paid more than 12 cents a pound for pork chops, you just won't pay 20 cents for them."

"Have a steak, then," said Mr. Jarr.

"You had a steak for breakfast just now," said Mrs. Jarr.

"Yes, and it was so tough I couldn't eat it," replied Mr. Jarr. "Get a tender steak."

"I won't do anything of the kind," said Mrs. Jarr. "It wasn't so very tough."

"I'll tell you what would be nice," said Mr. Jarr, now getting another appetite during the discussion. "Let's have fresh fish. Have fish; have anything, so long as we have salad with it."

"Well, I'll see," said Mrs. Jarr. "Only if it's very discouraging to keep house for you. You won't tell me what you want, and yet you are the first to fuss if we have anything to eat you don't like."

"I'm sure it's immaterial to me what is cooked, so if you'll only tell me what you want—make some sort of choice—I'll have it."

"Have a nice light soup and roast chicken and salad," said Mr. Jarr.

"You can't get roast chicken this time of year unless you pay a terrible price for it. Can't you suggest something else?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

"Would it do any good?" asked Mr. Jarr. "You don't seem to get enthusiastic over what I have suggested. I don't care what you have. Anything will do me, except, as I said, I don't want beef stew and I do want a salad."

"Oh, all right, Mr. Crank!" said Mrs. Jarr. "Here you've been standing half an hour talking about what you want for supper and you've just finished your breakfast. Don't you ever think of anything but eating?"

Mr. Jarr was going to say the topic was not of his choosing, but decided not to argue, and so made his farewells. When he came home for supper, Mrs. Jarr said:

"Now, don't start to kick. I didn't have time to go out to get anything, and that steak was left and so I made beef stew. It's plain, healthful food. And I forgot about the salad, and now it's too late to send out for it."

Mr. Jarr heaved a sigh and let it go at that.

ABOUT the rarest thing to locate is welcome that don't or won't wear out.

Thought "Honey" Was Near.

BRIDE and groom they were, unmistakably, and the guests writing "Wish you were here" greetings in that Atlantic City hotel were much interested in them. Each sat at a desk and got busy with pen and ink, the silence being broken only when the bride asked how to spell a word. These queries annoyed an old gentleman writing near by, and he was plainly relieved when the bridegroom left the room. The little bride did not know that she had been deserted, and she again got stuck on a word.

"How do you spell Cincinnati, honey?" she asked.

"C-i-n-c-i-n-a-t-i-n-i-h-o-n-e-y," responded Mr. Grouch—Lippincott's.

On Two Shifts.

A FARMER-BY stopped to admire the blooms in the flower garden where Louis was at work.

"Do you do all the digging yourself?" asked the stranger.

"Oh, no," came the reply; "my garden is worked on two shifts. As soon as I knock off the chickens begin."

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One.

I WANT you to meet Mr. Shawtun; he's our leading lightweight champion. "Prize fighter!" "Oh, no! Coal merchant."

A Shame.

DIDN'T you see me hold up my hand?" asked the traffic policeman. "I must confess that I did," replied the man who was driving his own car. "Then why didn't you stop?" "I lost my nerve. I had just spent three-quarters of an hour getting this car to start and it seemed a shame to lose all that work."—Washington Star.

When a man protests loudly that he wants justice, he usually wants something more, or different.—Albany Journal.

The Modern Child.

I SUPPOSE you are going to take your children to see the circus? "No, I'm afraid I'll have to go alone. Their time is so taken up with tango, tea, hesitation hops and fox trot functions that they really haven't an evening to spare."
